

Witness Tells Of Seeing Army Bomber Fall

Mountville Man Relates Discovery of Wrecked Aircraft.

The crash of an Army bomber near LaGrange yesterday was discovered by Rosser Wood, a WPA supervisor of Mountville, eight miles east of LaGrange on highway 109.

"My brother, J. F. Wood, and I were standing on the front porch of my home watching the development of a thunderstorm. We had just eaten dinner and had been listening to the radio," said Wood.

"Black clouds were gathering all around, and there was lightning. Suddenly I saw the plane in a nose dive, coming out of the clouds. I can't say how high it was, but the motor seemed to be off and it kept coming down at an angle.

"The time was 2:40 o'clock. Suddenly I heard a loud crash and then a small one. I rushed to my automobile and drove off in the direction of the noise. For two miles I had to walk through the woods. It was raining hard.

"I found a small fragment of a label on the ground. It said '359-Oxygen' and I knew I must be near the plane. Soon after I saw the wreckage. The plane was completely demolished and parts were scattered everywhere."

The House Paint That Endures

It's brilliantly white... tough... durable! Du Pont House Paint keeps houses beautiful because it stays cleaner! Here's why— Du Pont Prepared Paint forms a tough, durable film which protects the surface from rust, rot or decay. Like all paints, it collects dirt on exposure to elements. As time goes on, however, a fine white powder forms on the surface of this new paint. This powder is washed away by heavy rains, carrying the dirt with it, and exposing a fresh white surface. This "self-cleaning" process starts after a few months of exposure under normal conditions of weather, but may be delayed under unusual climate or dirt-collecting conditions. Because the "self-cleaning" process is gradual, the wearing qualities of the film are not abnormally affected.

Gasoline Tanks Burn Fiercely At Savannah

Tanker Is Pulled Away From Blazing Terminal by Tugs.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 22.—(AP)—Two gasoline storage tanks burned with raging fury tonight at the Pure Oil Company's waterfront terminal after an explosion. Firemen fought to prevent spread of the flames to other structures.

Mingo Shiver, 56-year-old pump house attendant, was burned critically in the fire which also wrecked the pump house, office building and damaged the boiler house. The fountain of flame above the burning tanks attracted hundreds of motorists who jammed the single roadway running to the plant. One fire engine went into a ditch while en route to the fire. A major tank of gasoline, containing approximately 2,000,000 gallons, was not immediately affected by the fire and officials hoped to save it. The explosion occurred at 9:05 o'clock and three hours later the fire still burned fiercely. Two tugs were aiding firefighters. The tanker R. P. Smith, which arrived yesterday from Port Arthur, Texas, and was discharging

Harrison Death Called Great Loss for U. S.

Roosevelt, Hull, George Join in Tribute to Senator.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, describing the death of Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, as a "loss to the nation" in "this hour of grave emergency," led a host of notables in paying tribute today to the senator's memory.

"Senator Harrison's death is a great sorrow to all of us who were his close friends," the President said. "It is a loss to the nation and to the state of Mississippi, both of which he served long and ably in the congress of the United States."

"First as a member of the house and afterwards for more than 20 years as a senator his exceptional talents won increasing recognition rewarded in successive posts of great responsibility. It was as natural as it was fitting that he should finally attain the chairmanship of the great committee on finance and that his colleagues should, in due course, as another tribute to his worth, select him as president pro tempore of the senate."

"Keen of intellect, sound in principle, shrewd in judgment, he had rare gifts of kindly wit, humor, and irony which delighted all."

"Pat Harrison's friendship was a privilege to me personally for 30 years. He will be sadly missed in this hour of grave emergency."

Secretary of State Cordell Hull said he learned of Harrison's death "with the very deepest sorrow."

"It was my privilege and honor to have been his colleague and to have considered myself his close personal friend for over 30 years," Hull added.

"Senator Harrison was a statesman of unexcelled ability and judgment and was the personification of loyalty to principles and to friends."

George Expresses Regrets. "He devoted his entire life unselfishly to his country, and the fitting tribute will mourn the passing of one of its most useful and finest citizens."

Chairman George, Democrat, Georgia, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Harrison's passing removed "one of the ablest and most useful men in public life at a time when his mature judgment and fine qualities of leadership are so much needed."

George said Harrison's "rare wisdom and sweetness of character endeared him to men of all parties" and that his death was "a great personal loss to every member of the senate."

"I think his death is a great disaster to the senate and the country at large," said the veteran Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia.

Election Mere Formality. Two recent events demonstrated Harrison's great personal popularity. His election as president pro tempore of the senate to succeed the late Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, was a mere formality. Upwards of 2,000 persons, Vice President Wallace, cabinet members, senators and just "plain homefolks" attended a reception celebrating his 30 years in congress. President Roosevelt sent a warm note of congratulations.

Finance Committee chairman, Harrison had much to do with the drafting of legislation underwriting the earlier expenditures of billions of dollars for defense, and his absence will be felt when the senate takes up current tax proposals now before the house.

As ranking member of the Foreign Relations Committee, he helped steer to passage the famous bill H.R. 1776 for the lending and leasing of war materials to nations resisting aggression.

Although christened Byron Patton Harrison, he had been known simply as "Pat Harrison" from time he was elected district attorney of the Gulfport district at the age of 23.

He entered the senate in 1910 to build a reputation as one of congress' most able give-and-take debaters. He was famous for his satirical attacks on the Republicans when they were in power, and just as famous for his ability to get legislation passed when the Democrats took over. His strategy was to trade, pacify and flatter.

For years, Harrison preached against what he called "government waste," and he opposed some administration fiscal policies vigorously in the earlier days of the "New Deal." As a result, the administration threw its support to Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, in a contest between him and Harrison for the majority leadership of the senate in 1937. Barkley won 38 to 37, with Senator Theo G. Bilbo, Democrat, Mississippi, casting the deciding vote against Harrison.

Master in Hospital, Anxious Shepherd on Hunger Strike

TAMPA, Fla., June 22.—(AP)—Louie, a German shepherd "seeing eye" dog, is feeling better today, thank you, and ate his first hearty meal in 10 days.

Louie's master, 22-year-old Grover Smith, who is blind, was stricken with appendicitis 10 days ago, and since Smith has been in a hospital, the sympathetic Louie refused to eat and moped listlessly around the Smith home. He just couldn't understand what had happened to his master.

By Saturday, Smith was well on the way to recovery but Louie was getting weaker and weaker from undernourishment.

The superintendent of the municipal hospital was appealed to, and the hospital waived its no-dogs-allowed order. It took three persons to keep Louie from bounding to the bed when Smith said, "Hello, Louie, been a good dog?"

Later, at the Smith home, Louie ate two cans of dog food and everything's going to be all right.

George Given C. J. daSilva, Choice of Two Federal Road Engineer, Dies

Harrison's Death Opens Finance Chairmanship to Georgian.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—(AP)—The death of Senator Pat Harrison opened the way today for major changes in important senate committees.

Harrison was chairman of the Finance Committee, which handles tax legislation, and was ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee as well as president pro tempore of the senate.

Chairman George, Democrat, Georgia, of the foreign relations committee, also is ranking member of the Finance Committee, and he now may choose between retaining his present position or taking over Harrison's job on the finance group.

If George retains the Foreign Relations Committee chairmanship, Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, now chairman of the Naval Committee, will be first in line to head the finance group. If George decides to take the Finance Committee chairmanship, Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, will have first claim on the Foreign Relations committee chairmanship.

It was expected that election of a president pro tempore would be postponed for some time. When Harrison became ill, he appointed Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, to be acting president pro tempore.

Governor Johnson and Murphree Also Are Suggested.

JACKSON, Miss., June 22.—(AP)—As Mississippians high and low mourned the death of Senator Pat Harrison, there was speculation on at least three appointees who might take his seat, and predictions that four other men might be candidates for the balance of the term, which expires in January, 1943.

Governor Paul B. Johnson, arriving at the Governor's mansion from his home in Hattiesburg, declined to comment on possible appointments to fill the seat, and joined in paying tribute to "a truly distinguished statesman." He said he would make no announcement on an interim appointment until after Harrison's funeral Wednesday.

Though authorized comment was forthcoming from no one, one group thought the Governor might resign his office and himself be appointed to the senate by Lieutenant Governor Murphree.

Because of Johnson's health, however, this was considered a likely happening only in the event he foresaw little or no opposition to his candidacy in the special election.

Two other possible appointments for the 90-day period of service were mentioned. They were the senator's widow and T. M. Ederman, editor of the Jackson Clarion-Ledger and a colonel on Johnson's staff.

Four other persons were talked of as possible candidates for the balance of the term. Of Mississippi's congressmen, Ross Collins, of Meridian, was the most prominently mentioned for the race. Two former governors, both of whom had sought senatorial seats, were considered likely candidates. They were Mike Conner, whom Harrison had defeated in 1936, and Hugh White, whom Senator Theodore G. Bilbo bested in 1940. Attorney General Greek L. Rice also was mentioned as a possible candidate.

When the Lawyer Called in an Agent...

Dear Mr. Johnson: As a lawyer, I often find life insurance playing a part in the lives of my clients. One of your recent columns, which described the service a good agent can render, reminds me of an experience of my own.

Three years ago my friend Jim Raines came to me very much troubled. His business—of which he was the sole owner—had been in bad shape. To keep it going, he had dropped part of his life insurance, posted one policy as collateral for a loan, borrowed heavily on a rest. But the tide had turned.

Now, facing a lower income, he had the problem of keeping up his premiums.

I happened to think of what my agent had once accomplished in a similar case and phoned him.

"Will you talk to Jim?" I asked. "Even though there won't be any business in it for you?"

"Of course," he said. "Be glad to do anything I can."

This is what he did. First, he rearranged the premium dates to make it as easy as possible for Jim to pay the premiums. Then he persuaded him to make regular savings bank deposits, to be used to pay premiums when they came due. Into these went a definite percentage of every bit of income he got, before he had a chance to use a dime for anything else.

Jim's first reaction was that this might be all right for others—but that he didn't need to play psychological tricks on himself. But my agent stuck to his point and won out.

"I certainly wish I'd let some agent do all this for me before," Jim told me, when he saw how the plan was working out. "Oh, I'm not out of the woods yet. But I spend less time worrying and more running my business—which helps more than you've any idea..."

Unfortunately, he died eighteen months later. It was a tragic shock, of course, for his family. But the insurance guaranteed them financial security, and his business passed to his oldest son and his son-in-law as a going concern—neither of which would have been the case, I am convinced, if a life insurance agent had not been "glad to do anything he could."

This is an institutional advertisement by the Institute of Life Insurance, 60 East 42nd Street, New York, N. Y.

Italy Declares War on Soviet; Role Uncertain

Point of Contact May Be Only on Sea, If at All

ROME, June 22.—(P)—Italy declared war on the Soviet Union today, following Germany's lead in what Italians called at once a "crusade of liberation" against Bolshevism and a drive for supplies of wheat and oil for a long struggle against Britain and the United States.

How, if at all, Italy would participate actively was not learned, but some observers said it was almost certain that Premier Mussolini would want at least symbolic representation of Italian airmen on the Russian front.

The likeliest points of belligerent contact between Italy and Russia were at sea.

It might become Italy's task to co-operate with the Germans in an attempt to block the western entrance of the Dardanelles against passage of Russian ships.

A statement handed to the foreign press sought to give the character of a united European struggle against Bolshevism and against Russia, Britain and the United States.

Adolf Hitler's war decision was said to be "the logical consequence of proposals and a policy of healthy European reconstruction."

Virginia Gayda, chief editorial spokesman for Fascism, wrote that the drive into Russia was to gain food for Europe to counter the Allied blockade and he charged that the United States wants to starve all Europe.

News that Italy had taken on another belligerent fell quietly on Rome in the middle of a stuffy summer day. With the exception of blackouts, minor transportation annoyances and food restrictions, Rome has never seemed like a wartime capital.

The Italian government informed the Russian ambassador, Nicolai Gorchelch, that a state of war existed between Italy and his nation as from 5:30 a. m. today (11:30 p. m., Saturday, E. S. T.).

The news was broken to the Italian public in a brief broadcast by the Rome radio at 1 p. m.

Prior to the official Fascist announcement, authorities had declared "prompt, total, profound and spontaneous" Italian solidarity with Germany in the conflict.

Britain, U. S. Can Sit, Smile, G. B. Shaw Says
LONDON, June 22.—(P)—George Bernard Shaw, the playwright, on the German invasion of Russia:

"Only yesterday we and America were faced with the tremendous job of smashing Hitler—with Russia looking on smiling."

"Today, owing to the inconceivable fact of Hitler, we've nothing to do but sit and smile while Stalin smashes Hitler. Now we'll see what will happen. Germany hasn't a dog's chance."

"Either Hitler's a greater fool than I took him for or he's gone completely mad. Why people seemed to think Hitler could beat Russia I can't imagine."

Sweden Orders Ships To Return to Ports
LONDON, June 22.—(P)—Swedish radio stations broadcast an urgent message to all Swedish ships at sea today to break off their voyages at once and return if possible to a Swedish port.

Such a request would be given if Sweden were about to become a belligerent.

A report from Stockholm by Reuters, British news agency, said King Gustav returned to the capital from his country castle and conferred with key cabinet members for two hours.

A serious Army worm infestation is threatening wheat. The worms are reported inflicting damage in southern Oklahoma and northern Texas. Government agents and farmers are co-operating to combat the worms.

Text of Churchill's Description Of War's Fourth Climacteric

NEW YORK, June 22.—(AP) The text of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's radio address, as transcribed by the National Broadcasting Company, follows:

I have taken occasion to speak to you tonight because we have reached one of the climacterics of the war. In the first of these intense turning points a year ago, France fell prostrate under the Cerman hammer and we had to face the storm alone.

The second was when the Royal Air Force beat the Hun raiders out of the channel and thus ward off the Nazi invasion of our island, while we were still ill-armed and ill-prepared.

The third turning point was when the President and Congress of the United States passed the lease and lend enactment, devoting nearly two thousand million sterling of the wealth of the New World to help us defend our liberties and their own.

Those were the three climacterics. The fourth is now upon us. At 4 o'clock this morning, Hitler attacked and invaded Russia. All his usual formalities were observed with scrupulous technique. A nonaggression treaty had been solemnly signed and was in force between the two countries. No complaint had been made by Germany of its nonfulfillment.

Confidence Violated.
Under its cloak of forced confidence, the German armies drew up in immense strength along a line which stretched from the White sea to the Black sea, and their air fleets and armored divisions slowly and methodically took up their stations. Then suddenly, without declaration of war, without even an ultimatum, German bombs rained down from the sky upon the Russian cities. The German troops violated the Russian frontiers and an hour later the German ambassador, who till the night before had given assurances of friendship, almost of alliance with the Russians, called upon the Russian foreign minister to tell him that a state of war existed between Germany and Russia.

Thus was repeated on a far larger scale the same kind of outrage against another form of signed compact and international faith which we had witnessed in Norway, in Denmark, in Holland, in Belgium, and which Hitler's accomplice and lackey, Mussolini, so faithfully imitated in the case of Greece.

All this was no surprise to me. In fact, I gave clear and precise warnings to Stalin of what was coming. I gave him warnings, as I have given warnings to others before. I can only hope that these warnings did not fall unheeded. All we know at present is that the Russian people are defending their native soil and that their leaders have called upon them to resist to the utmost.

Insatiable Monster.
Hitler is a monster of wickedness, insatiable in his lust for blood and plunder. Not content with having all Europe under his heel to terrorize into various forms of abject submission, he must now carry his work of butchery and desolation among the vast multitude of Russia and of Asia. The terrible military machine which we and the rest of the civilized world so foolishly, so supinely, so insensately, allowed the Nazi gangsters to build up, year by year, from almost nothing—this machine cannot stand idle lest it rust, or fall to pieces. It must be in continual motion, grinding up human lives and trampling down the homes and the rights of hundreds of millions of men.

Moreover, it must be fed, not only with flesh but with blood. So now this bloodthirsty gutter-snipe must launch his mechanized armies upon new fields of slaughter, pillage and devastation. Poor as are the Russian peasants, workmen and soldiers, he must steal from them their daily bread. He must devour their harvests. He must rob them of the oil which drives their plows, and thus produce a famine without example in human history, and even the carnage and ruin which his victory, should he gain it—he has not gained it yet—will bring upon the Russian people shall in itself be only a stepping stone to the attempt to plunge the 400 or 500 millions who live in China and the 350 millions who live in India, into that bottomless pit of human degradation over which the diabolic emblem of the swastika flouts itself.

"It is not too much to say here this summer evening that the lives and the happiness of a thousand million additional human beings are now menaced with brutal Nazi violence. This is enough to make us hold our breath. But presently I shall show you something else that lies behind and something that touches very nearly the life of Britain and of the United States."

Devoid of Principle.
The Nazi regime is indistinguishable from the worst features of Communism. It is devoid of all principle except appetite for racial domination. It excels in all forms of human wickedness, in the efficiency of its cruelty and ferocious aggression. No one has been a more consistent opponent of Communism than I have for the last 25 years. I will unsay no words that I have spoken about it. But all this fades away before the spectacle which is now unfolding. The past with its crimes, its follies and its tragedies flashes away.

I see Russian soldiers standing on the threshold of their native land guarding the fields which their fathers have tilled from time immemorial. I see them guarding their homes, where mothers and wives pray, Ah, yes, for there are times when all pray for the safety of their loved ones, for the return of the bread-winner, of the champion, of their protector.

I see the 10,000 villages in Russia where the means of existence is wrung so hardly from the soil, but where there are still primordial human joys, where maidens laugh and children play. I see advancing upon all this the inviolable onslaught of the Nazi war machine, with its clanging, heel-clicking, dandified Prussian officers, its crafty expert agents, fresh from the cutting and cowering down of a dozen countries.

I see also the dull, drilled, docile, brutish masses of the Hun soldiery crouching on like a swarm of crawling locusts. I see the German bombers and fighters in the sky, still smarting from many a whipping, and they are likely to find, they believe, an easier and safer prey.

Behind all this storm, I see that small group of venomous men who planned, organized and launched this cataract of horrors upon mankind. Then my mind goes back across the years to the days when the Russian armies were our allies against the same deadly foe, when they fought with so much valor and constancy and helped to gain a victory, from a share in which, alas, they were, through no fault of ours, utterly cut out.

Old Memories.
I lived through all this and you will pardon me if I express my feelings and the stir of old memories.

But now I have to declare the decision of his majesty's government and I feel sure it is a decision in which the great dominions will in due course concur. We must speak out now, at once, without a day's delay. I have to make the declaration.

None can doubt what our policy will be. We have but one aim, and one single irrevocable purpose. We are resolved to destroy Hitler and every vestige of his Nazi regime; from this nothing will turn us; nothing. We will never parley, we will never negotiate with Hitler or any of his men. We shall fight him by land, we shall fight him by sea, we shall fight him in the air, until, with God's help, we have rid the earth of his shadow and liberated his peoples from the yoke.

Any man or state who fights against Nazism will have our aid. Any man or state who marches with Hitler is our foe. This applies not only to organized states but to all representatives of that vile race of Quislings who make themselves the tools and agents of the Nazi regime against their fellow countrymen and against the hands of their birth.

These Quislings, like the Nazi leaders themselves, if not disposed of by their fellow countrymen, which would save trouble, will be delivered by us on the morrow of victory to the justice of the Allied tribunals.

That is our policy and that is our declaration. It follows, therefore, that we shall give whatever help we can to Russia and to the Russian people. We shall appeal to all our friends and allies in every part of the world to take the same course and pursue it as we shall, painfully and steadfastly to the end.

Pledge of Assistance.
We have offered to the government of Soviet Russia any technical or economic assistance which is in our power and which is likely to be of service to them. We shall bomb Germany by day as well as by night in ever-increasing measure, casting upon them month by month a heavier discharge of bombs and making the German people taste and gulp each month a sharper dose of the miseries they have showered upon mankind.

It is noteworthy that only yesterday the Royal Air Force fighting inland over France cut down, with great honor to themselves, 28 Hun fighting machines in the air above the French soil they invaded, defiled and professed to hold. But this is only a beginning. From henceforward, the main expansion of our air force proceeds with gathering speed. In another six months, the weight of the help we are receiving from the United States in war materials of all kinds, especially in heavy bombers, will begin to tell.

This is no class war; this is a war in which the whole British Empire and Commonwealth of Nations is engaged without distinction of race, creed or party. It is not for me to speak of the action of the United States, but I will say if Hitler imagines that his attack on Soviet Russia will cause the slightest division of aid or slackening of effort in the great democracies who are resolved upon his doom, he is woefully mistaken. On the contrary, we shall be fortified and encouraged in our efforts to rescue mankind from his tyranny. We shall be strengthened and not weakened in our determination and in our resources.

Hitler's Dream.
He wishes to destroy the Russian power because he hopes that if he succeeds in this, he will be able to bring back the main strength of his army and air force from the East and hurl it upon our island, which he knows he must conquer or suffer the penalty of his crimes.

His invasion of Russia is no more than a prelude to an attempted invasion of the British Isles. He hopes, no doubt, that all this may be accomplished before the winter comes, and if he can overwhelm Great Britain before the fleets and air power of the United States might intervene.

He hopes that he may one again repeat upon a greater scale than ever before that process of destroying his enemies one by one, by which he has so long thrived and prospered, and that then the scenes will be clear for the final act without which all his conquests would be in vain, namely, the subjugation of the western hemisphere to his will and to his system.

The Russian danger is, therefore, our danger and the danger of the United States, just as the cause of any Russian fighting for his hearth and home is the cause of the men and free people in every quarter of the globe. Let us learn the lessons already taught by such cruel experience. Let us redouble our exertions and strike with united strength while life and power remain.

Turkey To Form New German Ties
ANKARA, June 22.—(P)—Turkey renounced officially neutral in the new war between Russia and Germany today, but disclosed new friendship ties with Germany.

(The Rome radio reported Turkey had proclaimed a state of siege.)

Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu announced a commercial treaty with Germany would be concluded quickly as an aftermath of the nonaggression pact the two countries signed June 18. Turkey already had a friendship treaty with Russia and a nonbelligerent alliance with Britain.

Adolf Hitler's assertion that he had blocked a German scheme for bases on the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus made a deep impression in Turkish circles.

Saracoglu told German, American and British correspondents in separate meetings that "it can be expected that a new commercial treaty will be concluded shortly between Turkey and Germany," but said nothing on Rome reports that Turkish-Italian trade talks were under way.

New Wickersham Building Ready
Dedication services for the Elizabeth A. Wickersham Memorial building on the campus of the Georgia Baptist Orphan's Home at Hapeville were held yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Ellis Fuller, president of the Georgia Baptist Convention, accepted the building for that organization, which was presented by C. A. Wickersham.

Dr. J. L. Baggett, pastor of the First Baptist church of College Park, rendered the invocation; Dr. Louie D. Newton delivered the dedicatory address; Dr. Z. E. Barron pronounced the benediction and Mrs. Alonzo Richardson presented a short memorial to Mrs. Elizabeth A. Wickersham.

Hitler Does Not Trust Russia, George Asserts
WASHINGTON, June 22.—(P)—Congressional reaction to Germany's war with Russia today included this statement from Chairman George, Democrat, Georgia, of the Foreign Relations Committee:

"There is an element of surprise in the German attack, because it generally had been assumed that Russia would meet all the demands made upon her. It now is manifest Hitler does not trust Russia, and that he is taking military action to prevent any attack against his eastern flank."

British Help Promised Reds By Churchill

famine without example in human history"—if Hitler should win.

Yet all this, Churchill said, would be "only a stepping-stone to the attempt to plunge the 400 or 500 millions who live in China and the 350 millions who live in India, into that bottomless pit of human degradation over which the diabolic emblem of the swastika flouts itself."

Old Alliance Mentioned.
Thus, he commented, "it is not too much to say here this summer evening that the lives and the happiness of a thousand million additional human beings are now menaced with brutal Nazi violence. This is enough to make us hold our breath."

Churchill touched briefly on Russia's alliance with Britain in the World War "against the same deadly foe," and mentioned regretfully that the Russians unhappily got no share in that victory.

"But now," he said, "I have to declare the decision of His Majesty's government, and I feel sure it is a decision in which the great dominions will in due course concur. We must speak out now, at once, without a day's delay. I have to make the declaration. None can doubt what our policy will be.

"We have but one aim, and one single irrevocable purpose. We are resolved to destroy Hitler and every vestige of his Nazi regime; from this nothing will turn us; nothing.

"We will never parley, we will never negotiate with Hitler or any of his men. We shall fight him by land, we shall fight him by sea, we shall fight him in the air, until, with God's help, we have rid the earth of his shadow and liberated his peoples from the yoke."

Usual Perfidies.
The prime minister, observing that Hitler had attacked Russia this morning, said all the "usual perfidies" were followed in the German declaration of war on Russia.

He asserted German troops violated the Russian frontier, bombed cities and began the invasion even before the German foreign minister announced that war had begun.

"All this was no surprise to me," he said.

Churchill said he had given warnings to the Russian government before and he expressed hope that they had not fallen on deaf ears.

"Hitler is a monster of wickedness, insatiable in his lust for blood and plunder," the prime minister continued.

The terrible military machine which Britain and others allowed be built up must of necessity find action always, Churchill said, and now "this bloodthirsty gutter-snipe" has launched his legions against "new fields of slaughter."

"He must steal from them (the Russians) their daily bread."

SOVIET LEGATES STOPPED.
NEW YORK, June 22.—(P)—The Berlin radio reported today that Russian embassy members in Budapest had tried to leave Hungary secretly in automobiles, but were stopped by police and forced to stay.

CBS heard the announcement.

"Any Enemy of Germany!"

Prime Minister Winston Churchill, speaking yesterday to the world, said that he retracted not one word or sentiment heretofore expressed against Communism, but that any enemy of Germany would receive from England what assistance, technical and material, she could offer.

This was a fair statement and one the world can understand.

The decent peoples of the world, seeking to maintain systems of government less efficient than the ruthless and God-less totalitarian systems, because they do permit within their framework those freedoms which decent peoples prize, denounce both Communism and Hitlerism. Indeed, there is but little, if any, difference between the treachery and the murders of Stalin and Hitler.

The breaking of the solemn pact which Hitler and Stalin signed just 22 months ago is but another link in the chains of treachery and characterless policy with which Germany and Russia have progressed to this, their armed disagreement.

It probably is true, as Hitler charged with an assumed righteousness which must have caused loud laughter in the deepest caverns of hell itself, that Russia was playing him false. Assuredly he was playing Russia false. It was as fine a deal as ever two murderers made and the wonder is it lasted 22 months.

The world has lost sight of the fact that Hitler, and to some lesser extent Stalin, have done a damage which is as real and tangible as the damage done by shell and bomb.

Civilization can progress only insofar as it may depend upon the pledged word, the contracts made, the agreements, signed or understood.

This extends deep into our daily lives. It is a part of the life of every man with a job, of every businessman who buys and sells, of money and of the simple acts of our everyday life.

Hitler has been the chief assassin of this fundamental necessity for civilized nations.

The record is a long one. Some of its chief points may be presented in brief:

On January 14, 1935, after the Saar plebiscite, he said:

"This is our last territorial bone of contention with France."

On May 21, 1935, he said:

"As to Austria, no one means to threaten anybody. Germany neither intends nor wishes to interfere in the internal affairs of Austria, to annex Austria, or to conclude an Anschluss."

He signed solemn treaties with England after being given the Sudeten section of Czechoslovakia.

He had a 10-year treaty with Poland and had, only a few months before breaking it, reaffirmed it and spoken of his friendship and determination to abide by the treaty.

He has broken every treaty, every pledge. He does this deliberately, holding contempt for any who believe in decency, in honor, in anything but force.

The two most evil governments in modern times now are in conflict. Aid to the weaker one, because it is a foe of the stronger, is possible without surrendering one bit of hostility for the ideology and methods of the weaker.

One may not like all of England's history. It is not a question of liking England or disliking her.

It is a question of realism. England stands between us and a force which would destroy all that is precious in our history, all the freedoms which our forefathers came here to find and establish.

The conflict between Russia and Germany is fraught with danger of a quick German victory which would have unpleasant reactions on the future conduct of the war.

It is easy to understand Winston Churchill when he says that any enemy of Germany will receive aid.

It would have pained the late Dan Beard to know he once got us into trouble with his books. It seems father wanted the barrel we had broken up for skis.

The passing of the Kaiser, instead of whoozis, recalls Oliver Herford's sad observation, on reading a club notice of the death of a member, "It's always the wrong one."

Worthy Record

Germany, seeking excuse to order all United States consulates both in the Reich itself and in occupied countries, closed, lists some half dozen instances of what it describes as offensive actions against the Nazi regime on the part of American consuls. Presumably Italy, the "Me, Too" of the Axis, which has already followed the Berlin lead in ordering the consulate closings, will likewise cook up similar excuses.

Of course, all the world knows the action is really direct retaliation for the United States action in ordering all German consulates in this country closed. And, probably, Italian consulates here will soon be ordered out, likewise.

But it is interesting to read the charges made by the Gestapo against American consuls. They go back as far as two years to dig up such things as "spoke derogatorily against the Nazi government in hearing of German citizens;" "used code to send out matter economically inimical to the Reich," and so on.

Every American consul in Germany has known for years that, even in the privacy of his own office, anything he says may be overheard by the Gestapo. Anything he telephones or writes may go to the Gestapo files. This has been no imaginary condition, it is actual condition in a country ruled as is Germany today.

The mere fact that, after years of closest espionage, the Gestapo can rake up no more, or no more serious, charges than those listed, is a remarkable tribute to the care with which our consuls have conducted themselves under most trying circumstances.

If this is all the material against them the efficient Gestapo could accumulate over a period of years, this country is blessed with a consular corps deserving of public honors for its powers of discretion.

Who Is To Blame?

There is, admittedly, a shortage of aluminum for defense production. Aluminum, or its companion metal, duraluminum, is used largely in airplane construction and it is a vital material.

Secretary Ickes has charged that the Aluminum Company of America is an outright monopoly and that it is obstructing the defense program.

On the other hand, I. W. Wilson, vice president of the Aluminum Company, states that his company is today interested in but one thing, to produce sufficient aluminum to meet all defense needs. He declared the company had already doubled, and shortly would treble, the 1938 output; that it had spent $200,000,000 of its own money to advance the defense effort; had repeatedly offered to put all its technical resources at the government's command.

Further, Wilson stated that it planned to apply to the RFC for funds to finance a hydro-electric project at Fontana, N. C., as a power source of the production of 10,000,000 pounds of aluminum annually, but that this had been held up awaiting approval of the Office of Production Management.

Undoubtedly someone is to blame for the delay in increased aluminum output. But it would be unfair to accept Secretary Ickes' charges at face value, without giving due consideration to the possibility that OPM itself may be to blame, because of the delay in approving the Fontana project.

Whoever is to blame, the ailing given the situation by the Senate Defense Investigating Committee will undoubtedly have good results. It should cause a prompt acceleration of this item in the defense program.

Sole member of the original cast to appear in the closing performance of "Tobacco Road" was the banker with the mortgage. Those fellows never weaken.

Georgia Editors Say:

COMING TO PASS.

(From The Waycross Journal-Herald.)

In an outstanding study of the high school graduate in relation to employment, Dr. Ralph Newton some weeks ago expressed the opinion that students and parents were giving too much attention to so-called white-collar jobs; that there were not enough of these jobs to supply all of the high school graduates with steady and profitable employment.

The influence of defense preparations is proving beneficial.

Quite a number and a steadily increasing number are going to defense trades schools and to N. Y. A. trades schools and to night schools learning work other than white-collar work.

Inasmuch as the pay in the average trade is far more than it is in the average white-collar job, the probability is that this tendency away from white-collar jobs will continue after the defense emergency is over.

While high school and college graduates are finding it far easier now to find employment immediately upon graduation, we must not forget that it has taken preparation against war to bring this condition about.

We cannot afford as a nation to look complacently upon war or threats of war as the only possible solutions of mass unemployment.

Unquestionably these schools under various auspices that are training young people in trades will win friends and from now on public opinion will demand more of these schools.

What is going to have the greatest weight is that even the young people are finding out the white-collar job is at a tremendous disadvantage these days when it comes to wages and salaries.

THE WORLD TODAY

By COLONEL FREDERICK PALMER

TOO LATE FOR DAKAR WASHINGTON, June 22.—Granting that amateur opinion is worth less than the consensus of professionals who will have to direct and do the job, it is now too late, if it ever were practicable, for the United States to take Dakar.

Any attempt to do so at this time would be a hazardous enterprise which might involve us in disaster—unless Vichy has a change of heart and the French garrison in Dakar, having turned belligerently hostile to "collaboration" with Germany, should welcome us with open arms.

Strategically, on the map, the proposal to take Dakar on the African coast, 1,800 miles from Cape San Roque, Brazil, is most appealing on the ground that to hold the outposts of Dakar and the Cape Verde Islands is to close the gateway for attack on South America. Occupation of Dakar, the theorists also contend, would be of great aid to Britain in beating Germany, when the contrary is true until German air power is mastered.

These armchair strategists seem to forget all the recent evidence that warships cannot afford to challenge superior air power operating from near-by land bases; and also that Dakar is nearly twice the distance, 3,400 miles from our Atlantic coast, than Dakar is from Brazil.

25,000 IN GARRISON The French have a present garrison of 25,000 men in Dakar. It has coast defense batteries, a good air field and is a submarine base. There is a chain of air bases northward along the African coast in a region where more air fields can be readily prepared.

To send over an expeditionary force in increments to Dakar, as we did to France in 1917-18, when they went to safe ports behind the French wall in the infancy of air power, would be an invitation to massacre in detail. We shall see that our initial force to Dakar should not be less than 100,000 men. With them must go tanks, guns, ammunition, food, and all kinds of engineering transport and maintenance equipment.

Four hundred thousand tons of shipping would be too modest an estimate for an expedition that might require 100 ships, and a powerful naval escort, inclusive of all types from destroyers to battleships.

PLENTY OF WARNING Grant that this armada could leave our coast unknown to German spies, and the slightest possibility that it could be concealed until it was within 700 or 800 miles of the African coast, then air scouts from the African coast would spot it and maintain touch with its progress and direction.

Its speed would be that of the slowest ship. At 15 knots, a high estimate, the enemy would have from two to four days' warning of a convoy's approach, which would be ample time for the mobilization of German bomber reinforcements all the way from the North and Black seas to the African coast.

What a spread of targets, like a flock of ducks in flight over a hunter's head, when the dive-bombers and torpedo-carrying planes, with the aid of submarines, looked for the blitzkrieg on the 100 ships for the last 200 or 300 miles before they were even in sight of the African coast!

One bomb through the decks and bottom of a troop transport, and 5,000 men might be plunged into the sea; 50 tanks, 100 guns, and 100,000 rounds of ammunition might be lost. Our fighter planes, rising from our aircraft carriers, would make a gallant effort in defense, but the aircraft carrier's place is the open sea. It is too vulnerable to approach near land bases.

COULDN'T LAND Suppose half our ships did reach the harbor at Dakar after silencing the defense batteries. There is insufficient pier space for even 20 ships, and we should still be under bombing attack. So we would be if we tried to establish a beachhead by dribbling men and material ashore in open boats.

If we went south to Freetown, British Sierra Leone, we should have to advance 500 miles through tough tropical country to Dakar, while from French North Africa to Dakar there are available roads for enemy reinforcement which enable quicker transit than for us over 3,400 miles of ocean. And all our ships carrying reinforcements and supplies for our garrison would have to run the gamut not only of the submarine danger of 1917-18, but the bombers of 1941.

CAPE VERDE ISLANDS There is also talk of taking the Cape Verde Islands. These very small islands would be bull's-eye targets for bombers, based on the African coast 300 miles away, while we were making our landing, leveling volcanic rock for air fields and setting up hasty defense.

In any plan of hemispheric defense, both the Dakar and the Cape Verde ventures had better wait until we have a well-equipped and fortified base on the coast of Brazil to cover our side of the Atlantic. The maintenance of an expeditionary force on the African coast would divert an enormous amount of material from aid to the British for our own use. Such are the hard military facts for the amateur strategists to consider, without any "defeatist" implication when our Army and Navy will go wherever ordered in a "do or die" spirit.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Ship Capacity.

Of course it is an old story to the veterans of our A. E. F. in France, in the last war, who crossed the Atlantic in such numbers. But in conversation the other day the subject of the crowded conditions on most troop transports came up.

My contribution was a quotation from a member of the ship's personnel, of the Aquitania, remembered from a conversation on the foredeck with him when I was coming home from England, on that vessel, a week or two after the war began in 1939.

Our ship was crowded. Normal passenger capacity of about 1,800 had been stretched, by means of cots in some of the lounges, etc., by use of cabins usually relegated to crew or steward's quarters. And the ship seemed to us to be terribly overcrowded.

So this officer told me that, during the war of a quarter of a century ago, the Aquitania had carried, as a troop transport, as many as 10,000 men at a time.

Of course they bunked them in the hold, anywhere. And when all are men you can crowd 'em a lot. But 10,000 seemed almost unbelievable to me, though still I didn't doubt the man's word.

We saw smaller vessels, transports, leaving Southampton with the first contingents of that British force which went to France and, the better part of a year later, came out by way of Dunkirk. And the decks of those transports were so filled with cheering, laughing, singing men that they didn't seem to have room to move.

Speed For Safety.

It must be frightfully dangerous thing to send troops across broad waters, so crowded, today. For this is the day of air warfare and one or two bombs on a ship like the Aquitania would send her to the bottom.

But there is a factor of safety to offset the danger. That is speed. Ships like the Aquitania, the Queen Mary, etc., are far faster than most cargo or passenger ships. They make from 25 to 30 knots an hour, compared to the 10 knots which is the best many cargo ships can do. And speed is said to be the best defense against submarine attack.

A submarine cannot travel over some 10 or 12 knots an hour on the surface, and less than that when submerged. Thus a ship making 25 knots is comparatively safe once it gets past the U-boat. Unless the submarine can hit such a ship as it approaches, there is small chance once it has got by.

Thus the big luxury liners of prewar days serve in two ways. They can carry tremendous numbers of troops and their speed is a great factor of safety against underwater attack. But not so much against attack by air.

Convoys And Speed.

It is this question of speed that has made the convoy system open to doubt as the best means of sending material to England. A convoy has, perhaps, 30 or 40 cargo ships and it can travel only at the speed of the slowest. For they must stay together. Thus they all become targets for submarines.

Some have urged a system of patrol under which ships of the British navy would constantly patrol a given route from one side of the Atlantic to the other. Fast ships could speed at their utmost knotage per hour along this channel. If I know, it might be safer. Or not.

But it would have one big advantage. It would enable the British to gain full advantage of that speed. A 25-knot ship could carry two cargoes across the Atlantic in the time it takes a 10-knotter to make one trip.

I have the idea that a combination of the convoy system and the patrol system would be best. Convoys for the slower ships but a patrolled route for the fast ones.

And if, in the ships of the patrol, were included a number of those newly-converted airplane carriers, which could "mother" 20 or more fighting and scout planes, the result should be good. The planes could not only guard the convoys, an area of hundreds of miles of ocean, but they could attack and drive off enemy bombers. For they'd be dual purpose planes, fighters as well as scouts.

Of course, I'm not expert. Perhaps my ideas are all wet. But I felt like giving them here. This morning, as perhaps they'll be fortunate enough to start some trains of thought that will result in some real contribution toward victory in the Battle of the Atlantic.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Friday, June 23, 1916:

"The first troops of the Georgia militia to go to the state mobilization camp at Macon, under the orders of President Wilson last Sunday night, are now on the grounds."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Tuesday, June 23, 1891:

"Trenton, Ga., June 22.—(Special)—Seven convicts at Cole City made a break for liberty this morning. They were only overpowered after a battle that resulted in the death of three convicts, the mortal wounding of two others and the death of two of the guards."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Don't Ask Me Why NEW YORK, June 22.—Don't ask me why President Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt gave such strong aid and comfort to the Communists in the so-called labor movement, and in the political ramifications of that movement until the time when Stalin gave Hitler the signal to start the war. I don't know, and nobody has voiced anything better than an opinion. But I know they did do this and that it is largely the fault of the President, first, and then of Mrs. Roosevelt, that today Communists can tie up factories whose produce is urgently needed to defend the United States against Stalin's partner in conquest.

The Communists were repudiated by President Roosevelt in last year's presidential campaign, and it was then undertaken to show that they had switched their support to Wendell Willkie, of all people, a Wall Street lawyer as Harold Ickes called him, forgetting, perhaps, that Mr. Roosevelt, too, had been a Wall Street lawyer and that Mr. Roosevelt had heartily endorsed the past previous Wall Street lawyer selected by the Democratic party—John W. Davis, of the House of J. P. Morgan.

The Communists plot so little strength it is impossible to say whom they voted for last year, and it may well be that they did not vote for Willkie, knowing that this would have no bearing on the result—whatever the result. The Communists denounced President Roosevelt on only one issue—the issue of war against their ally, Adolf Hitler. But that did not wipe out the long record of sympathetic treatment which they had received from two Roosevelt administrations—particularly in the Relations Board, whose chairman, J. Warren Madden, finally became so offensive that it was necessary to boot him upstairs to a soft job for life, at $12,000 a year, as judge of the court of claims.

Coerced Workers

Under Mr. Madden the Labor Relations Board was a cell of Communistic thought and sympathy, which did not merely protect the workers' right to bargain but used its power to drive thousands of them into unions, preferably those of the CIO, in which the Communists were concentrating their efforts. The Wagner act gives the board no authority to make free men and women join unions, but the board, under Mr. Madden, coerced them anyway by sympathizing with the unions, notably those of the CIO.

As to whether the CIO is hostile to Communists, there is no need to inquire beyond the unrefuted testimony taken by the Dies committee and the recent issuance of a CIO charter to the Trotskyist revolutionary organization in Minneapolis, formerly known as Local 544 of the AFL Teamsters. Led by three brothers—Miles, Vincent and Grant Dunn—this local has long been notorious as a violent political organization under cover of an AFL charter.

Dan Tobin, the president of the AFL Teamsters, now admits belatedly that it has "a wide reputation for strikes and disorders" and contains guerrilla terrorist units consisting of squads of five men, known as defense guards. Tobin undoubtedly has known all this for a long time, but he finally tried to disintegrate or delouse the local of its anti-American elements, whereupon a group of 544 withdrew from the AFL and was welcomed into the Structural Workers of the CIO for its revolutionary and disruptive strength. It is not a structural union, and the CIO union which embraced it is not a Teamsters' union.

Tobin cannot erase the damned spot for years placed on the record of his own teamsters' organization, because the violent character of this Minneapolis terrorist group has been notorious for years but, nevertheless, was allowed to exploit its AFL charter in the interests of Trotskyism until the national emergency made action necessary.

However, Tobin and his teamsters may have given evidence of patriotic purpose, where the CIO was quick to grant a charter to the Trotskyist group.

The record of President Roosevelt on Communism contains the lamentable fact that he used the power of his office to disparage and hamper the Dies committee in its very trying and painful work of exposing the Communistic conspirators. And it cannot be forgotten that Mrs. Roosevelt ostentatiously attended a hearing of the committee, at which her proteges of the Communistic Youth Congress were under examination and not only gave open indication of her sympathy for the young Muscovites against this committee of congress but, to make certain that her intent could not be misunderstood, invited a number of the youths to the White House.

The whole record of Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt and of the administration toward Communism is very bad, and it will take some positive confession of error to convince the wary that there has actually been a change of heart, if change there has been.

Peru Roads Multiply.

Peru's highway system is expanding steadily, according to Federico Basadre, director of public works. In the four years 1937-40, the country spent $15,000,000 in highway construction. Four years ago Peru had only 33 miles of asphalted or paved roads outside of Lima. Now it has 1,200 miles of hard-surface roads. Until 1940 it was impossible to travel by car between Lima and Cuzco. Today there are two highways, each about 900 miles long, between the modern capital and the old Inca capital. Fleets of trucks and buses carried visitors from the remotest parts of Peru, including the jungle regions east of the Andes, to the Grand National Fair in Lima last year.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

"FILTHY BEASTS" The harried, ragged shade of futile Neville Chamberlain and the fatuous mind of Stanley Baldwin must be occupied with childish hand-wringing today—

The war they counted on has come at last. But late, very late. Perhaps, even too late. Adolf Hitler has deserted that "natural partnership" of 22 months ago and has gone to war against those "filthy beasts," as he characterized the Russians in his German bible, "Mein Kampf."

It was for this war that Baldwin and Chamberlain, Halifax, and Sir John Simon and all the others of the appeasement crowd which kept England poor in arms and planes, the while they armed Hitler. He was their fair-haired boy. He was to be their dupe. He was to be made strong with money and arms because he was going to be their substitute St. George and go out and slay the dreadful dragon of Communism. England could go on doing business and spending very little on arms. The only war was to be the great carnage of Russia and Germany, destroying the twin evils of Communism and Nazism. They promoted it—

It was for this they agreed to the Saar plebiscite. It was for this they held up the long white official finger when France was retreating as Hitler marched troops into the demilitarized Rhine valley.

It was for this they held up the forbidding hand when Hitler began to mutter about Austria and Mussolini, Austria's poor protector, busy with the Ethiopian campaign.

It was for this that Viscount Halifax visited in Germany and openly hinted it would be quite all right with him if Germany went ahead and took their little Austria.

It was for this, despite growing alarm, that Neville Chamberlain and the ruling crowd of his time kept up a non-intervention policy with regard to Spain while Russia and Italy and Germany tried out their new weapons on the peoples of that unhappy country.

It was for this, despite growing alarm, because the German tiger was acting very badly, even at feeding time, that Neville Chamberlain flew to Berchtesgaden and sold out the Czechs.

Surely that piece of meat would quiet the Tiger and turn him toward Russia!

UNTIL AUGUST 21, 1939 Chamberlain was a fumbling old man, his policy loose as ashes in his hands and a bitter taste in his mouth.

His dream fell to pieces on August 21, 1939. It happened at 11 o'clock at night—just as war against Russia began officially at night in the early hours of darkness Sunday morning.

The Nazis, who had climbed to power on hatred of Russia and on instilling fear of Communism in the minds of the people, signed a treaty with those "filthy beasts," unit for association with decent people," as Hitler conveniently had termed them a few years before. Truthfully, I think, it may be said, this was the greatest diplomatic shock since World War Number One, and perhaps the greatest—and most cynical one—of all time.

The Germans, Dr. Goebbels speaking, called it a long and traditional friendship. The Nazi press called it a "natural partnership."

In a sense, it was. It made it unnecessary for Hitler to add another long front to defend in the war he was getting ready to make. It allowed him a free hand toward Poland, Belgium and France with no Russian offense at his back.

It was, in a sense, a "natural" partnership. For Hitler. He could break it when he chose as he had broken every pledge he had made.

IF HE SWALLOWS RUSSIA If the Nazi snake swallows Russia, as it well may, it must take some time to digest it.

That period is the only benefit a victory will give England. And us.

It seems to me it was the stiffening position of the United States, and the fact we were ready to go to war—something Hitler took a long time to believe—which made him move.

If there was a chance we were coming in—and there was, and is—then he had to have more materials—iron, oil, food. One cannot store much iron or ores of any kind.

So, he moved, lying as usual about his causes as he had lied about Austria, the Czechs, the Poles and all the others with whom he broke pledges.

If he gets what he wants out of Russia—as I fear he can without too much fighting and too much bombing—he will have enough to fight a long, long war.

Russia is even more cynical than Germany. She will give up the Ukraine and her oil and her iron if she can hold the rest of her lands and keep her government intact. That last factor will decide it. Joe Stalin wants to keep in office.

It may be Hitler will stomp his toe. He already has gone farther than Bismarck or Frederick the Great or the late resident of Doorn. It is, in some respects, my first pleasant war. I hate them both. I hope we will help Russia until it looks as if they might win. And then I hope they will help Germany a little until they both have worn each other out.

Meanwhile, I'm afraid of this new war. Afraid of the consequences if Hitler wins quickly.

Federal officers report that Georgia moonshiners, following the course of progress, are building a new kind of still. It is below ground and hard to find. Those discovered were spotted from airplanes. Which beats "branch-walking," as the old-time revenuers termed following a stream until a still was found. Stills must have plenty of water. You don't see much in the news about moonshiners now. I'd almost forgotten they ever existed because licensed liquor stores supply Atlanta's demand—except among the back alley folk who can't afford it.

Disappearance from society of Georgia's famous white lightning forced folk to think up new topics of conversation. In those good old days the best method of taking the taste—and smell—out of a gallon of corn was a topic good for hours. Or until the gallon ran out.

But revenue men tell me there's a lot of corn still being produced and sold in the woods, from the mountains to the swamps.

"Much of it is made and sold in the dry counties," they said, "where the sale of even government-stamped liquor is illegal. There's a big demand for it, especially by folk who can't afford something better."

Quite a lot of moonshine is consumed in Atlanta's Negro quarters, they said. The standard item is a "flat pint." For 50 cents. I haven't seen a pint of white lightning since Georgia—or parts of it—licensed the liquor stores. I doubt whether I could down a hooker of it without making an awful face.

Moustache Cups.

Lundie Smith, doing a guest column for Jimmie Chapman in the Lowndes County News, boasts—or confesses—he has a collection of 15 moustache cups.

In which he is 14 up on me. My collection contains just one. It was my father's. It was used for coffee and it is by no means built for a demagogue. It looks like somebody had clipped a black nailbrush for the heated spell.

Inside the rim of a moustache cup is a little shelf, with an opening behind it. The grand old handleable moustache rested on this and the coffee ran under it. This kept the moustache from acting as a strainer.

Wonder how and where Lundie Smith accumulated 15 of them. I'll bet there are not that many in Fulton and DeKalb counties.

Sentimentalists.

Dog lovers—of whom I am one—sometimes grow a bit over-sentimental—might I say maudlin—over the plight of a pup which has made the headlines.

California woman, with death approaching, wrote into her will that her terrier, Rowdy, should be put to death after her passing—lest he grieve for her.

It went to the courts. Story says hundreds of lawyers volunteered to try to save the dog. Five thousand telegrams were received. It has been decided Rowdy will go to the Army Aviation Corps as a mascot.

Finer I, too, am glad Rowdy is saved. That was a nutty idea of his mistress.

But I can't help thinking how many hundreds of poor, bedraggled, friendless, homeless human

If certain members are not fibbing, the red-plush sofa and chairs they bought to make the lodge hall on Spring street more comfortable came from the quarters of none other than Miss Belle Watling, herself, of Atlanta, huh."

Pepper Urges Aid in Blockade Against Nazis

Moor violated international law and apparently constituted a warning that "the United States may use the high seas of the world only with Nazi consent," a dictate to which he said this country did not intend to yield.

Some opponents of the present foreign policy said they were awaiting a more detailed explanation from the State Department about the Robin Moor sinking.

Congress had on file a letter from President Roosevelt which indicated opposition to any attempt to restrict the property seizure bill which the War Department had asked the legislators to enact.

Advance Needs Unknown. In a letter to the chairmen of the Senate and House Military Committees, the President said it would be "impossible for us now to catalogue each and every one of the government's needs in advance."

The bill would empower the President to take over either "permanently or temporarily" any property needed for defense purposes, the value to be determined by the President. If an owner objected, he would be given 75 per cent of the offered figure and could sue for the rest.

The house is expected to take up on Tuesday legislation to provide mandatory deferment of draft registrants who have passed their 28th birthday. The same legislation also would give the President power to intervene in defense strikes by an order preventing interference with men who voluntarily return to a strike-bound plant.

Navy Expects Settlement of Coast Strike

Union Ratifies Ford Contract; Labor Outlook Brighter.

By The Associated Press. Naval authorities looked for an early settlement of the strike tying up $500,000,000 of defense work in shipyards of the San Francisco area last night while the labor outlook brightened also in other quarters.

Admiral J. W. Greenslade said new conferences would be held today which he hoped would bring "a definite plan as to what course and action is to be followed" and that he was confident no forcible measures would be required in the shipyard strike. AFL and CIO machinists are seeking wage increases and a closed shop.

Greenslade said: "We are opposed to the use of force unless it becomes absolutely necessary and have every confidence in the municipal authorities and police . . . to maintain order, and to protect the individuals who desire to return to work, and their families, should such protection become necessary. However, it is our sincere hope that measures in this direction will not be necessary."

"The Navy has every confidence in the fundamental good faith of the men now striking and it is our hope that they will return to work of their own free will."

"We have every hope that a complete return to work may be effected in the early part of the week."

At Detroit, members of the CIO United Automobile Workers' Union ratified the historic contract with the Ford Motor Company providing for a union shop and a plan was agreed upon for settlement of an AFL-CIO jurisdictional dispute which has closed the Douglas & Lomason Company, makers of automobile parts, for two weeks.

Under the agreement, the Labor Board will conduct a bargaining election at the plant Wednesday. The plant will re-open this morning.

CIO strikers at the American Potash and Chemical Company, Trona, Cal., however, voted 260 to 174 against accepting company proposals to end the strike for wage increases, a closed shop and better housing.

Women's Unit Of U.S.O. Goes Over the Top

Chairman Scott Lauds First Major Group To Exceed Quota.

The woman's division of the United Service Organization, comprising volunteer workers from civic and religious groups, yesterday had the distinction of being the first major unit of Atlanta's campaign forces to exceed its goal in the service men's recreation center fund appeal.

Following the "second report luncheon" Saturday at Davidson's tea room, Mrs. Philip Graves, division chairman, announced that $1,750 in subscriptions and pledges had been turned in to supplement the $3,950 previously raised. The division had an unofficial quota of $5,000 in the $90,000 fund effort.

Women Lauded.

Major Trammell Scott, campaign chairman, commended highly the work of Mrs. Graves, Mrs. Francis Dwyer, co-chairman, their team leaders and workers. He pointed out that the women canvassers were assigned to residential areas where it was necessary to make house-to-house calls.

In low-income neighborhoods, some individual workers made 25 calls a day to collect only a few dollars, he said. In many instances housewives said they could afford to give only a dime or a quarter, but were glad to make the contributions to such a worthy cause.

"If everyone else would give as much proportionately, this fund would be over-subscribed many times. It's the first opportunity we've had to do something voluntarily for the cause of national defense; to show the man in training camps, Army posts and Naval bases that we appreciate the sacrifices they are making," Major Scott said.

Service Men's Show. Meanwhile, plans for the service men's show, which might be entitled "On Leave," were being completed by the USO, Atlanta Post No. 1, American Legion Forty and Eight and the Service Men's Club.

Scheduled for 8 o'clock tonight at the Legion club house, Piedmont park, the entertainment will offer uniformed men two hours of music, dances and stunts. Topping the bill will be Vincent Hadlock and girls in an act entitled "Six Shades of Rhythm," presented through the courtesy of the troupe and the Henry Grady hotel.

There'll be no admission charge, and all soldiers and sailors are invited, it was announced.

According to police, Forester's car collided with a vehicle driven by Hal Reynolds, 48, of 4 Seventh street. Reynolds was arrested on a charge of drunk and reckless driving.

Ex-Japanese Legate

Praises Russian Army. NEW YORK, June 22.—(AP)—Shigenori Togo, former Japanese ambassador to Moscow and Berlin, was quoted by the British radio today as saying in Tokyo that Germany might be able to occupy Moscow, Leningrad and the Ukraine, "but that will not decide the war."

The report, heard by CBS, said Togo praised the Russian Army.

That, with Germany engaged in the east, Great Britain and the United States might feel more free to act in event of a Japanese drive in the south Pacific.

That Hitler himself might prefer that Japan remain inactive for the present as a threat against Britain or American aid to Russia through the Pacific.

An ironic feature of the German

Economic Ties With Russia Seen for U. S.

ambassador, made an unusual Sunday call at the State Department and was in conference nearly two hours with Undersecretary Sumner Welles.

Lord Halifax made no comment for direct quotation, but he clearly indicated that he regarded the Russo-German conflict as a development of tremendous importance and possibly a turning point in the war.

He did say that it should cause no let-down in British and American efforts against Hitler, but on the contrary should intensify them.

Proclamation Expected. A neutrality proclamation by President Roosevelt recognizing the existence of a state of war between Germany and Russia was expected soon, though perhaps not for a day or two.

No change in the present European combat zones banned to American shipping is expected. These already include the Russian Arctic ports as well as other areas affected by the eastward spread of the war.

The Siberian port of Vladivostok was expected to remain outside the prescribed combat zones for the present, but a presidential neutrality proclamation on the Russian-German war would then forbid American ships to take arms or munitions to Russia by Vladivostok, the only route open to any shipments.

A major problem posed for American policy-makers was the attitude of Japan toward the Russian-German war. Officials here thus watched carefully for signs of what action the Tokyo government might take.

Three Courses Open. Three possible courses for Japan were considered:

1. A Japanese attack on Russia from the east under the tripartite pact would give Japan to enter the war alongside Germany and Italy in the event of "aggression" against them by a third power not engaged in the conflict at the time Tokyo signed the pact last September. It was noted that Hitler accused Russia of taking the initiative. Japan, however, has a "neutrality" agreement with Russia even newer than the tripartite pact.

2. A Japanese military drive southward against the rich Netherlands East Indies, with whom economic negotiations have just been broken off. The "neutrality" agreement with Russia was generally considered a move to free Japan's hands on the north for such a drive south. Russia's preoccupation with Germany thus would seem to give Japan still greater freedom to take such a step.

3. Japanese "neutrality" toward the new conflict, at least until the military operations established the probable victor.

The most prevalent view in informed quarters here was that Japan would take no immediate action for these reasons:

Has Ironical Touch. That, with Germany engaged in the east, Great Britain and the United States might feel more free to act in event of a Japanese drive in the south Pacific.

That Hitler himself might prefer that Japan remain inactive for the present as a threat against Britain or American aid to Russia through the Pacific.

An ironic feature of the German attack on Russia was little Finland's part in it.

Russia's invasion of Finland in the winter of 1939 was bitterly condemned by the American government, which emphasized its sympathy with Finland by imposing a "moral" embargo on the shipment of military airplanes and parts to the Soviet Union.

The United States also denounced the Russian occupation of the three small Baltic countries last summer.

As officials here saw increasing possibility that Russia might yet become an important factor in the European war, the "moral" embargo was lifted and extended trade negotiations were undertaken with Russia.

The growing demand for strategic materials for national defense in this country, however, led to a sharp curtailment of exports such as machine tools to Russia, and relations between the two countries drifted into new uncertainty.

Nazis Deployed Against Reds In 3 Sections

Front Compares to Distance From Texas to Canada.

BERLIN (Monday), June 23.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler has sent his divisions into battle against Russia along a front comparing roughly to the airline distance from Brownsville, Texas, to Winnipeg, Canada.

Military commentators emphasized that the troops were deployed in three main sections:

1. The northern segment from the Arctic Ocean to the Finnish border, covering 700 airline miles where, they said, Finnish soldiers were fighting beside the German.
2. The middle sector from Memel, on the Baltic sea, to the Carpathian mountains on Russia's Rumanian frontier. This 700-mile front is manned only by Germans.
3. The southern section, covering 300 miles along the Russian Rumanian border from the Carpathians to the mouth of the Danube. Here Rumanians are fighting beside the Germans.

It was said the connection between the northern and middle sectors was maintained through mines to protect that flank against naval patrols.

Chicks Wallop Crackers, 15-6, To Capture Three Game Series

BY JACK TROY

Fastest Game If a Southern League ball game should be finished in an hour and a half, headlines wouldn't concern who won or lost but how the teams played the game.

Anytime a ball game is played in an hour and three-quarters it's news. For usually games require two hours or more. Umpires request hustle but can't demand it. If the players don't want to dash from bench to field and vice versa they don't have to.

As to the time, a fan hasn't got any use for the extra 15 or so minutes. It isn't that. A fast ball game simply has more appeal. It leaves a follower in a better frame of mind. A two-and-a-half-hour ball game leaves most of the constituents limp, even if their favorite team wins.

Speaking of hustle, whenever speed in a ball game is considered, old-timers recall the Atlanta-Mobile game that was played in 32 minutes at Ponce de Leon park. Possibly you didn't know that a triple play was made in the game. Mobile pulled both a triple and a double play on Atlanta. The starting pitchers finished and Mobile defeated Atlanta, 2 to 1. The game was played on September 19, 1910.

Still ranked as the fastest game of ball ever played, the game was 10 minutes faster than one played between Nashville and New Orleans on the same day at Nashville.

For the benefit of those fans who weren't in the stands or the game, here is the box score of the record contest—

Excuse, Please There are few things more disturbing than to see one's name misspelled in print. I have often heard showmen say they didn't care what a newspaper said about them, just so it spelled their names right.

Ofttimes the spelling of a last name gives cause for confusion. I know of one specific case because I have a letter which perfectly illustrates it.

A long-suffering mother writes a fine letter, which I sincerely hope will put an end to one instance of constant misspelling.

Mrs. Elmer R. Enlow writes—
"Dear Sir:

"May I be permitted to register a long-restrained protest on the consistent misspelling of our name—year in and year out—in your sports sections?

"The boys have said and done everything imaginable in the hope that somebody might slip up and spell it correctly once, but it continues to come out in bowling and softball—'Enlow'—which is a nice name but does not identify our boys. They hand it to Enlow, tell the umpire, complain to headquarters—all to no avail.

"Now, it isn't important to anyone but us, but in the interest of good reporting, as a special favor to their mother, how about D. Enlow pitches against his brother, J. Enlow?"

"When Jack made high score in bowling and it came out 'Enlow,' he hardly recognized himself.

"There are six of them—E. Enlow, D. Enlow, L. Enlow, B. Enlow, R. Enlow and J. Enlow.

"Some of our variations are: Enslow, Enloe, Inlaw, Enlaw—practically everything but their name.

"Thanks!"

"Sincerely Yours, "Lucille Enlow."

Altogether now, men (of softball and bowling)—N-L-O-W!

He Asked for It There is a bit of moral in this story. Ordinarily our Mr. Kenneth Rogers is a mild-mannered individual. I have seen him thrown in a water hole by a horse and then get up and assure the horse it was his fault.

I have seen Mr. Rogers assist elderly people from street cars. He once gave a starving man a nickel and another time offered a drowning man a drink of water.

Yes, sir; Old Blondy goes out of his way to be nice to fellow man. That's why there is a moral in this story.

The other evening we were sitting in the foyer leading to the Persian Room at Mr. George Hanjars' emporium when a loud-mouthed person approached.

This person announced that he didn't care for anyone the place and that he didn't think our government was hot, either.

Mr. Rogers arose and politely asked the gentleman what he said.

"You heard me," he said. "I don't like you or the President."

Mr. Rogers pulled the gentleman's soft hat down over his nose. Then he calmly spun him around and in another motion threw him bodily out the front door.

"Now keep going before I lose my temper," said Mr. Rogers. "You can cuss me but doggoned if you're going to say anything about the President."

What Price Burge? If a college ace who has never played pro ball is worth $45,000 to the Detroit Tigers, I can't help but wonder what price Babe Burge?

The most improved Southern League player, both at bat and in the field, may hit 40 home runs this season. He is a minor league Ruth. Ask any scout. Ask anybody. Take a good look for yourself.

President Trammell Scott, watching him clout his 25th homer, said, "His swing is the closest thing to Babe Ruth's ever saw."

Burge is not benefitted by short fences. He clouts tremendous home runs over the most distant fences. And his power isn't all right-field power by any means. He has hit home runs over left and center field fences in other league parks.

Burge always showed signs of power. So he has only Continued on Page 7.

Brother Texans Lose and Win To Annex $7,000 Iverness Meet.

By FRITZ HOWELL

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 22.—(AP) Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret, brother Texans, lost one match and gained a 1-up decision in another today to win the seventh annual $7,000 Iverness invitational four-ball match and split up the $2,000 top prize money.

Winning by the greatest margin in the tourney's history, the victors finished with a plus-11 count, three ahead of the score with which P. G. A. Champion Byron Nelson and long-hitting Jimmy Thomson finished second for $1,300 in prize money.

Here's how the eight teams of top-notch professionals finished, with the prize money split by each pair:

Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan, plus 11, $2,000.
Byron Nelson and Jimmy Thomson, plus 8, $1,300.
Ray Mangrum and Harold "Jug" McSpaden, plus 5, $1,200.
Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta, plus 2, $700.
Horton Smith and Lawson Little, minus 5, $600.
Sam Byrd and Johnny Bulla, minus 6, $500.
Dick Metz and Clayton Heafner, minus 7, $400.
Ralph Guldahl and E. J. "Doc" Harrison, minus 8, $300.

In today's final rounds, the late holes being played in a heavy rain, the 16 stars scored 92 birdies and three eagles, giving them 222 birdies, 6 eagles and a hole in one for the seven-match round.

Included in the prize money was $100 for Nelson and Thomson for their best-ball 62, nine under par, which tied Mangrum-McSpaden for the tourney's best round. In addition to the $100 for the outstanding round, McSpaden and Mangrum picked up $200 more for the most birdies in the tourney, 46.

The Spotlight

By GRANTLAND RICE

FROM ANOTHER WAR.

Under their crosses, gray and white,
Where the poppies grow and the grasses spread,
I wonder if any can hear tonight
The steady tramp and the endless tread
Of the millions marching above the dead
To find their way to another fight?
Would they like to rise from their yellow dust
To move again to the bayonet thrust?

Do they strive to break from the gripping clay
And join their mates as the flag goes by?
Or turn in peace to a dreamless day,
To a dreamless night and a starless sky,
Nor hearing the wounded's weary cry,
Where the great guns thunder their right of way?
Their night is long—and the dark is deep—
But there's never a dawn that can end their sleep.

The Major Eye.

Is there a major eye in competition, whether right or left, or do both eyes function about equally?

This matter has been brought forward from a number of sources and passed along to your correspondent for comment. In turn we have passed at least part of the buck along to Bobby Jones, since the discussion began over the head position in golf.

It has been my belief that tilting the chin slightly to the right was largely done to keep the head in a fixed position. This chin tilt was emphasized by Jerry Travers, Walter Hagen and Bobby Jones, among others, who together have won around 30 national golf titles.

In this head position the right eye could be of little use.

The Jones Angle.
Here we have Bobby Jones' answer to the problem. "I think quite often there is a major eye, whether right or left. I couldn't say it is universal, however. In my own case, it happens to be the left eye. I've found that out in golf and I've found the same is also true in shooting."

"It is quite true that tilting the chin slightly backwards, or to the right (if you are right-handed), is done largely to keep the head in a fixed position through the swing. And this is one of the most important fundamentals of any swing. There can be no anchor if the head is allowed to drift, especially in the general direction of the line of flight."

"But I also want to look at the object in tilting. This gives me the chance to keep my major eye on the ball and so helps to make things a little easier. I suppose if my right eye wanted to take charge I'd have a harder time keeping my chin back and my head still. This worked the same way for me in handling a gun. After experimenting both ways I discovered I could shoot better from the left side, with the gun against my left shoulder. This gave my stronger eye a better chance to handle the sighting needed."

The Closer Eye.
In talking this over with a number of good hitters in baseball, I find they make greater use of the eye that is closer to the action.

Naturally, they call on both eyes, but a right-handed hitter gets more out of his left eye—and vice versa.

Joe Jackson and Babe Ruth, for two notable examples, stood well around, with the left side held well back. In these two cases the right eye had to do most of the looking.

You can prove this by standing up for a left-handed swing, pushing the right foot forward, dropping the left foot back, and then closing each eye in turn. You'll find the vision of the left eye in this case is well cut down.

In the Fight Game.
This would be different in a fight, where punches come from different directions. Any fighter who has one eye badly closed would naturally be under a heavy handicap.

In golf and baseball the stance is pretty well set in advance. One blind eye would be of slight handicap to a golfer. But attempting to follow fast punches coming from two or three directions is another and deeper battle.

Probably the greatest exhibition ever seen in a ring came from Battling Nelson against Ad Wolgast. Late in the fight, after a long string of rounds, both were badly battered. Nelson's right eye was completely closed. The fight was stopped with Nelson groping for his opponent in complete darkness.

Eye Importance.
Bill Tilden and Walter Hagen will both tell you how important the eyes is in tennis and golf.

"Yes," Tilden says. "But the eyes play a big part and as you grow older they bring along no small handicap."

"One of the first things that began to bother me in golf after many years," Hagen said, "was my putting. I know part of this was due to my eyes. Yes, I know. But the eyes play a big part and as you grow older they bring along no small handicap."

"It also affects putting in a big way. There was a time when I could take one quick look and catch the right line. I can't now. Even on the shorter putts I may be an inch to the right or an inch to the left because my eyes failed to line up the hole correctly."

The point brought out by Bobby Jones is important. If you are right-handed and want to keep your chin in place, it is an easier job when the left eye is the stronger sighter. For if the right eye wants to get a better look, to take over the assignment, there is the temptation to move the chin forward and so move or lift the head.

Keeping the head in place is still more important than anything else.

Tribe Wastes 6-2 Advantage In 2d Contest

Tilt Called Off After 3d To Allow Club Time for Train.

By JACK TROY

Memphis handed Atlanta's league-leading Crackers one of their worst beatings of the year yesterday but the Crackers gained half a game on second-place Nashville.

While Memphis was having batting practice against four Atlanta moundsmen, Birmingham took care of Nashville by taking both ends of a double-header.

The Crackers and Chicks played an abbreviated double-header. The first game, delayed by rain, was slow because of showers and so much hitting. In winning, 15 to 6, the Chicksasas clubbed 18 hits. There was a time limit on the second game and it was called at the end of the third inning with Memphis leading, 6 to 2. The Crackers were saved by the bell.

Frank Veverka, who once performed for the Crackers under the name of Frank Werk, proved that a rose by any other name is just as sweet when he pitched steadily to win his twelfth game. This put him in a tie for most games won with Ed Heuser, Atlanta ace and a former Chik.

AIDS OWN CAUSE.

Veverka did some hitting in his own behalf. When the Crackers rallied and threatened to nullify his lead, Veverka banged a home run to widen the gap.

There was only one feature on the Cracker side. Lester Burge hit his twenty-fifth homer of the season. It was a tremendous wallop which hit near the top of the third tier of signs in right. Burge is now the leading home run hitter of professional baseball, according to all available records.

Cracker pitching, on the other hand, reached a new low for the season. Young Rene Cortes lasted only two-thirds of an inning, and the Crackers never caught up.

Cortes was charged with four runs and the defeat. Bob Chipman, Emile Lochbaum and Allyn Cracker pitched in the parade of Cracker pitchers.

Bud Hafey's four hits topped the Memphis attack, while Cully Rickard and Frank Piet each had three.

OFF TODAY.

The Crackers are off today—that is to say, officially—and will leave by train for Little Rock.

There will be three games at Little Rock and four at Memphis before the club returns home to day we'll open a series with Birmingham.

Cortes, in midseason form, lasted two-thirds of an inning. Rickard doubled and Honeycutt walked. Then after two out, Fugit singled, scoring Rickard.

After a triple steal Honeycutt cut scored. Piet singled, scoring Fugit and Hafey. Chipman replaced Cortes and retired the side.

Bates walked, moved to third on Ryan's single and scored on Burge's long fly in the Crackers' half. In the third Ryan doubled and scored on Glynn's single.

In the fourth, Veverka doubled and raced home on Hodge's single. Hafey and Piet drew walks in the fifth and Gautreaux drove in Hafey with a single. The Chicks added two more runs in the sixth. Honeycutt forced Hodge. Naylor singled and Fugit forced Naylor.

In Hafey, singled, driving in Honeycutt. Piet's single scored Fugit.

FOUR-RUN RALLY.
The Crackers put on a four-run rally in their half of the sixth. Burge led off with a home run. Glynn walked and Richards doubled. Glynn scored on Gerlach's fly. Cronk scored on Gerlach's fly. Cronk scored on Gerlach's fly. Cronk scored on Gerlach's fly.

Afterward, Cronk scored on Gerlach's fly. Cronk scored on Gerlach's fly. Cronk scored on Gerlach's fly. Cronk scored on Gerlach's fly.

Nowak dished up a home run ball to Veverka in the seventh and Lochbaum took over the pitching. Rickard singled and moved around to third on a fielder's choice and sacrifice and scored on Naylor's fly.

There was a final five-run spurge in the ninth, disposing of Lochbaum and bringing Stout into the game.

Naketenis and Gehrman Humble Nashville; Pebs Beat Lookouts Two Games.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 22.—(AP)—Birmingham's Barons shut out Nashville twice in two pitchers' battles today to close their current series at two all.

Pete Naketenis held the Vols to five hits in the opener as Birmingham nipped Leo Twardy for seven blows and a 2-to-0 decision.

Both clubs pounded out five hits apiece in the second match, but the Barons' Paul Gehrman was more effective in the pinches and his club came through with a 4-to-0 victory. John Sain served on the mound for Nashville.

This company, located at 520 Marietta street, is exclusive distributors for Budweiser, Cook's beer and ale, Krueger ale, Cook's Imperial champagne and wines, and also a line of imported wines and domestic and imported liquors.

Some six years ago this company started in a small way, but today, through its steady growth, it has, according to R. H. Hogg Jr., president, made Budweiser, Cook's and Krueger ale the leaders on Atlanta's market. The fact that the company now enjoys more than a million-dollar business annually is evidence both of the merits of the products it distributes and the accommodating and splendid service it renders to its growing list of patrons. It has a fleet of nearly 20 trucks and a staff of approximately 50 employees that keep on the jump to render the service so much in demand these days for the popular brands of beer, ale and wines, etc., it distributes.

"We attribute our splendid growth to two facts," said Mr. Hogg. "First, Atlanta has become definitely quality-conscious and is now insisting upon high quality drinks, and second, our policy of advertising regularly in newspapers and other mediums as well as giving courteous, quick service."

If you heard anybody say that "The Fourth of July is Christmas" you would say President Roosevelt is at it again on changing holidays.

The Fourth of July is truly like Christmas when it comes to enjoyment of a Motorola auto radio. It is the big time of the year for trips. Dad and the whole family load up the automobile for that patriotic day. Everybody goes

"Of course, we could not have made such gains if our products had not been of a uniformly high standard," he continued. "Cook's has maintained the same quality that was to be had prior to prohibition days."

Budweiser has again largely increased its capacity of cellars at a cost of half a million dollars. Mr. Hogg reports. Krueger plant is running full capacity, and its product gains daily in popularity. There is a constant increase both locally and nationally, for Budweiser, and the local distributors are well prepared for the large demand through July and August for this popular drink.

What better occasion could come up to give the one thing that adds everything towards enjoyment of such a trip. Motorola auto radio is the proper gift for dad, brother, sister or sweetheart. A vacation trip would be incomplete without Motorola. Keep up with your favorite baseball team. Listen to world news. It is really news when a world war is broadcast over radio. You won't miss your favorite radio programs when you install a Motorola auto radio.

July Fourth is really Christmas when you give the perfect gift, Motorola, at a time when it is more appreciated than any other time of the year.

You well know leadership is never given. It is invariably won through careful preparation and exacting effort. Motorola won leadership when it first pioneered auto radio 11 years ago. And in each succeeding year since then it had held its leadership by adding new developments and major improvements, bringing car radio reception to its present state of perfection. The year 1941 is no exception in this parade of Motorola leadership years. With three-dimensional Vita-Tone, Motorola again gives its right to say, "first again." Hear Vita-Tone! ## State Agent for Inter- Ocean Casualty Makes Fine Record.

Leading all agencies in the United States in applications for the month of May, this year, the O. L. DeLozier Insurance Agency, in the Rhodes-Haverty building, is indeed proud of its record.

This concern is state agent for the Inter-Ocean Casualty Company, one of the largest exclusive accident and health insurance companies in the country. It offers a complete line of insurance along these lines—just the type of insurance suited to the needs of each individual.

Mr. DeLozier calls attention to the nation's annual bill for sickness and accident, and says that it reaches a staggering figure due to doctors' fees, medications, and the like, to say nothing of salaries lost through illness or inability to work from accidents of various kinds.

"It has been estimated," he says, "that about one in eight persons suffer from some kind of disabling and costly sickness or accident each year. The only known device that gives satisfactory protection against financial loss when disability strikes is a good income protection policy."

Mr. DeLozier also says he would be glad to receive inquiries from persons interested in becoming agents for the Inter-Ocean Casualty Company in Atlanta and throughout Georgia, either on a full-time or brokerage basis.

Tears, Rents in Bathing Suit Easily Mended

Georgia Reweaving Company Would Like To Show You.

Did you find a torn place or a moth hole or some other tear or rent in your bathing suit as you pulled it out for your use this summer?

If you did, then the best thing you could do would be to take it to the Georgia Reweaving and Tailoring Company for the repairs to make it almost like new.

Not only bathing suits, but any kind of dress or suit, where a burn or a snag has brought a hole in it. This concern employs a force of expert reweavers, and when they have finished reweaving a place in the material it is quite difficult to find where the hole was.

Look up the garments you know need going over—need a few repairs—need ugly tears or snags closed up—need a new collar or maybe buttons—anything to put them in practically new and splendid wearable condition. If such is the case, drop down to 22 Cain street, just in the rear of the Henry Grady hotel, and see what a nice job these young women can do for you.

The concern is owned and managed by Mrs. Sara Bentley-McKinley, who began its operation some four or five years ago. She has surrounded herself with a force of Atlanta young women who are adept with a needle and in the operation of re-weaving methods. Hardly a garment can be brought in to be repaired—a garment with holes or tears in it—that the material cannot be matched—at least, so nearly perfectly matched that when the job is finished the repair is invisible.

Gold Shield Employees Use Summer Club

Jester's Lake Place Where Employee, Employer Join in Fun.

"All work and no play is no fun," decided S. R. Greenblatt, president of the Atlanta Laundries, Inc., two years ago, and so the Gold Shield recreation club was formed for the entertainment of Gold Shield employees. Gold Shield Laundries, which include May's, Excelsior, Capital City, Guthman's, Piedmont, Decatur, Troy, American and Trio, employ over 2,000 men and women, and employee-employer relations are regarded as an important factor in the business.

Beautiful Jester's lake is the home site of the recreation club, and for very little cost employees can go and take their families out to the lake at any time to enjoy various amusements and sports. Tennis, swimming, softball, dancing, eating and soft-drink facilities—all are available to club members. Whether members are interested in two-hour visits or week-end excursions, the recreation club offers splendid opportunities for play and relaxation.

Many years of experience and public service have served to help Gold Shield plan a program for its employees that will be not only satisfactory but worth-while for them all. Among the many privileges granted each employee is the opportunity to secure insurance at low cost through group rating. Group insurance, paid for co-operatively by employer and employee, provides for life, disability, hospital and surgeon compensation for sickness and accidents.

To adequately provide smiling, efficient service to Atlanta—as has been Gold Shield's aim for more than 50 years—trucks travel 200 routes, picking up and returning laundry to every corner of the city. Besides these "wheels of progress" there are 20 pick-up offices conveniently located.

All of these outstanding advantages which Gold Shield offers its

Improvements Are Made in Orkin's Place

Great Demand for Orkin Service Is Reported by Owen Kelly.

The Orkin Exterminating Company has just completed extensive alterations on its offices and warehouse at 315 Peachtree street, N. E., according to announcement by Owen Kelly, manager of the Atlanta branch.

Providing twice the former space, the remodeled offices now have fluorescent lighting and terrazzo asphalt tile floors. The front of the building also has been improved and the interior redecorated. In addition to the offices and warehouse, the firm maintains a modern fumigating chamber in its basement.

"These changes were absolutely necessary to afford more room for our office force and sales staff to handle our steadily increasing business," said Mr. Kelly. "Every day more and more property owners are turning to our service for prompt and efficient eradication of rats, roaches, termites and other destructive pests."

Established 30 years ago, the Orkin Exterminating Company has 60 branches throughout the southeast and is the largest firm of its kind in this section.

Guaranteeing every phase of its work, the firm uses only the most modern and up-to-date methods. Its efficient service staff is composed of men trained to know the habits of pests and the proper methods for their elimination.

The firm's high-quality work in this city has won an enviable reputation for the Atlanta branch, which is the largest of the company's offices. Since its establishment here 17 years ago, the firm has saved local citizens thousands of dollars in the preservation of property.

If you are troubled with annoying pests of any kind the Orkin Exterminating Company invites you to consult them without cost or obligation.

Sub Becomes Tomb for Her 33-Man Crew

Navy Holds Sea Burial Rites Over Resting Place of O-9.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., June 22. (P)—On the gently rolling afterdeck of the submarine Triton, the Navy secretary, officers and common seamen joined late today in solemn services for the 33 men who lay deep beneath the ocean waters in the sunken old undersea boat O-9, beyond reach of human effort.

The final tribute came only a few hours after two naval divers reached the side of the crumpled craft in the "deepest working dives ever made in the world," and the Navy officially abandoned attempts to salvage the ship.

Announcement of the abandonment was made by Rear Admiral Richard S. Edwards, who said it was impossible for divers to work at the depths of 440 feet—the tomb of the O-9.

Wreaths were dropped upon the sea "for the nation" for the Navy and for the families of the victims as guns roared out the Navy's greatest tribute and bugles softly sounded taps.

Knock Tribute. The services were held amid a cluster of a dozen service craft on sunlit and almost flat seas—24 miles off this port where the submarine sank Friday morning.

Tears were close to Navy Secretary Frank Knox's eyes as he stood solemnly at the Triton's port rail to say softly to the O-9's men far below:

"God bye. We thank you, God bless you."

There were admirals with brilliant braid, sailors in dress blues and seamen and divers in denim work clothes—1,000 in all—who lined the rails of a dozen Navy vessels at strict attention.

Earlier, from Washington, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, approved the order to give up efforts to salvage the O-9, declaring:

"Under present circumstances, the decision must be to accept the situation as loss of Naval personnel at sea who can best be honored as men still at their station of duty. Not one of them would expect or wish another Naval man to risk his life to provide another final resting place."

Near Submarine. Admiral Edwards said both divers were "right down beside the submarine," although neither touched the hull.

The divers were R. M. Metzger, 27, of Philadelphia, and Chief Gunner's Mate Claude Conger, 33.

While he recovered from the effects of the tremendous pressure in a recompression chamber on the salvage ship Falcon, Diver Conger said he had an impression that he had seen "something that was crumpled up."

"I think I saw about 12 feet of this dark object," Conger said. "I think I saw a jagged line, but I'm not sure. I was not able to touch this dark object because I could not leave my descending line."

"I don't think I could see more than three or four feet with my light. It was the darkest I've ever been in."

Spain Approves Nazis Fighting Her Enemy
MADRID, June 22.—(P)—Spain's situation in regard to the German-Italian Axis has been clarified by the German war on Soviet Russia since Germany now is fighting "Spain's hated enemy against whom she (Spain) fought for three years" (in her civil war), authorized sources said today.

Spain accepted with dislike the signature of Germany's nonaggression pact with Russia in August, 1939, although she was pressed at the time to hail the pact as "a master stroke of diplomacy" which destroyed the attempt to encircle Germany, it was said.

Now, the authorized sources continued, "friends are with friends and enemies are known."

Fishing Boat Saves 26 From Portuguese Ship
LISBON, Portugal, June 22.—(P)—The fishing boat Fafe today brought in 26 survivors of the 6,870-ton Portuguese freighter Ganda, who said an unidentified submarine torpedoed the vessel May 20 two days out of Lisbon.

The Ganda carried a crew of 50 and 21 passengers. Fate of the missing 45 was not known. Several survivors were wounded.

British Report Gains in Syria
LONDON, June 22.—(P)—The British reported gains over wide areas today in Syria, cast in a new importance by the outbreak of German-Russian war.

Operations apparently centered chiefly around Damascus, from which the French had withdrawn. The Syrian capital was heavily defended and the British believe its capitulation may prove the turning point in the two-week-old campaign.

The Middle East command said Damascus had been occupied by Free French forces and summarized other fighting with the statement that action was continuing on all fronts "with local gains everywhere to our credit."

The French explained their withdrawal from Damascus as the result of insufficient strength to defend the ancient city effectively and said its defenders had been shifted to new lines in the mountains along the road to Beirut, the capital and chief port of Lebanon.

U. S. Consuls Ordered To Get Out of Croatia
BERLIN, June 22.—(P)—The new kingdom of Croatia, carved out of defeated Yugoslavia, today demanded the immediate closing of the United States consulate at Zagreb, the capital, DNB, official German news agency, reported in a Zagreb dispatch.

DNB said the Croatian demand was backed by charges that American consular authorities in Zagreb had assisted the enemies of Germany and Italy improperly.

(The United States has no diplomatic relations with Croatia, but consular officials stationed in Zagreb while Croatia was part of Yugoslavia remained there after the Axis conquest. Croatia now is ruled by an Italian prince as king.)

SEA TRAGEDY—It was down to the sea, more than 400 feet of it, yesterday for George Crocker, of Seattle, as he sought on the ocean's bottom off Portsmouth for the Navy's undersea craft O-9. Divers found the crushed hulk, and from what they reported the Navy gave up hope of recovering either men or craft. So they held funeral services at the site of the sinking, and the O-9 became a tomb.

Boy Scouts in 11 Counties Will Seek Aluminum On Other Items

House-to-House Canvass To Assemble Metal for Defense.

Beginning this morning 3,600 Boy Scouts in 11 counties surrounding Atlanta will open a three-week campaign to gather scrap aluminum for conversion into essential national defense products.

In a house-to-house canvass the Scouts during the period will store their collections at fire stations or Boy Scout huts. At the end of the drive the aluminum will be sold and the proceeds turned over to the local Red Cross.

Counties participating in the drive are Fulton, DeKalb, Carroll, Haralson, Paulding, Douglas, Cobb, Clayton, Rockdale, Pickens and Cherokee counties, and the township of Norcross.

Shortly after the end of the campaign an exhibition day will be announced. At that time all the collected aluminum will be brought to Five Points and exhibited. Later it will be sold in bulk.

The C-stitution will award a banner to the troop which brings in the largest quantity of the metal, by weight.

U.S. Drafting Laws for Curb On Propaganda

New York Senator Asks Ban on German Films.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—(P)—Secretary Hull said today that the State Department was drafting legislation tightening the restrictions on dissemination of foreign propaganda in the United States.

He made the statement in a letter to Senator Mead, Democrat, New York, in reply to a suggestion from the New Yorker that Axis propaganda films be barred from American motion picture theaters. Mead mentioned such pictures as "Victory in the West" and "Baptism of Fire."

Hull also wrote that the State, Treasury and Justice Departments were "giving active consideration to the question of whether the dissemination of Axis propaganda in this country cannot be prevented by other means, and it is my hope that a solution will soon be found by which a proper control over the dissemination of propaganda material may be effected."

Japanese Set Cabinet Session To Chart Path

Position in Course of Events Uncertain; Officials Silent.

TOKYO, June 22.—(AP)—An emergency joint meeting of the Japanese cabinet with army and navy commanders was ordered today to chart Japan's course in the war between her Axis partner Germany and Russia, with whom she has a new friendship treaty. The session was called (for 7 p. m., EST, Sunday) after Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka conferred with Emperor Hirohito. The meeting was later postponed for six hours.

From his conference with the Emperor, Matsuoka returned to the foreign office and discussed the situation with his associates for 10 minutes. Japan was said to have been fully advised by Berlin of the delicate nature of German-Russian relations and to be fully prepared to meet developments.

Shortness of the foreign office conference indicated the Axis partners had been kept informed minute by minute on the imminent break.

May Stand Aside. Maintaining discreet silence, the Japanese may stand aside from the new conflict and respect their obligations under both the tripartite pact with Germany and Italy and the nonaggression pact with Russia, observers said.

The most significant fact to this empire, however, was that pressure seemingly had been removed from Britain and the United States, thus permitting the United States fleet to remain in the Pacific.

It was believed that Germany's declaration of war could mean that Hitler was abandoning the idea of early conclusion of his war against Britain, which could mean the ending of the Japanese with the United States getting several months' leeway to prepare.

Japan was reliably reported to have tried unsuccessfully to intervene in the German-Russian crisis, and the United States was said to have been informed of the Japanese efforts.

Japanese newspapers headlined the war news with significant streamers, "Germany Attacks Russia."

Berlin Is Silent. (Berlin officials declined tonight to discuss whether Japan was obligated to fight Russia under the tripartite pact but one German source said, "I suppose it is up to Japan.")

(The tripartite pact signed last September 27 bound Germany, Italy and Japan to assist "one another with all political, economic and military means when one of the three contracting powers is attacked by a power at present not involved in the European war or in the Chinese-Japanese conflict.")

(Thus it does not definitely bind Japan to go to war for Germany or Italy. Japan on Easter Sunday signed a neutrality pact with Russia guaranteeing that Japan and Russia would respect each other's territorial inviolability and that each would remain neutral in case the other became the object of military action on the part of one or several powers.)

Japan Reported Likely To Forego Indies Thrust. SHANGHAI, June 22.—(AP)—The possibility of a Japanese thrust toward the Netherlands East Indies and their riches of oil, rubber and tin was believed lessened by outbreak of the German-Russian war.

British authorities at Singapore said tonight such a drive "is the least likely Japanese reaction to the new German invasion and saw a greater possibility that Japan would seize the long-awaited opportunity to strike at Siberia and settle old scores with Russia."

OPENING WORLD'S LONGEST FRONT—Rumanian troops, acting as allies of Germany crossed the Prut river yesterday and occupied the town of Bolgrad (1) in the one-time Rumanian province of Bessarabia in what appeared to be the first land offensive of the Russo-German war. Nazi air raids were reported to have caused 200 casualties at Sevastopol (2), Russian Black sea naval base, Kiev and Zhitomir (3) and Kaunas (4). Berlin said a Russian air raid was turned back in East Prussia.

German Attack Is Repulsed, Russians Claim

sank a 4,000-ton Russian freighter and a fishing boat.

The first military communiqué was issued from the German-Rumanian front in the south, stating that these allies had joined battle with the Russians from the mountains of Bucovina to the shores of the Black sea.

This indicates a 250-mile battlefront in that region alone.

Information received by military circles in Vichy, France, indicated the main German thrust probably was being made in that area, directed towards Kharkov, about 500 miles distant in the center of the Ukraine wheat fields.

Other Vichy reports said another German attack was started somewhere in the Baltic area, as part of a giant pincer movement aimed at Moscow.

Victories Claimed. German successes against Soviet Russia on the first day "can be compared to the biggest victories in the course of this war," a Berlin dispatch to the Finnish newspaper Suomi said last night.

Reports indicated unanimously, the dispatch said, that the Russians "had no idea of the force of the German striking power."

German planes, it added, were able to make two or three trips into Russia with loads of bombs. No significant anti-aircraft fire was encountered and only a few Russian fighters were met.

One squadron leader reported permanently crippling 60 Russian planes on the ground.

From bases very close to the frontier, German infantry reportedly led the advance, seizing railway and highway bridges before the Russians could destroy them. There was no news of armored forces, but it was expected they would go into action as soon as the infantry opens the roads.

Dense clouds of smoke from burning villages, oil stores and ammunition dumps were said to be rising in the wake of the retreating Russians.

Strong Resistance. The British radio, meanwhile, quoted the Rome radio as stating that the German advance to the east "is meeting strong Russian resistance."

Small Russian air squadrons bombed the Aaland islands and attacked two warships in Turku harbor, western Finland, during the day, information reaching Bern from Helsinki said.

The Russians were said to have missed the warships and the bombings caused no damage on the islands, between Finland and Sweden.

Throughout the day there were intensive Russian reconnaissance flights along the Finnish border.

The fighting line cut Europe in two from northern Finland, past the little Baltic states recently swallowed up by Russia, though Poland and down to the Black sea shore past Bessarabia and northern Bucovina, which Rumania wants to recover from the Soviets.

This new phase of the European war, like all Hitler blitzes, started with a terrific smash.

There were hotly fought air battles over East Prussia, Germany's most easterly province. The high command reported that Germany's veteran air fighters shot down a great number of Soviet machines.

The radio brought reports of an air assault on Windau, Lithuania, where the Russians have a base, and airports in Latvia. These Baltic states, with Estonia, had been incorporated into the U. S. S. R.

It appeared certain from the first reports released by the high command that, as before, Marshal Goering's air force was playing a conspicuous role.

In former campaigns its mission has been to disrupt the opponent's roads, railways and air fields, deep within his country, so that when German land forces come up they meet a foe already confused by destruction of transport and communications.

New Expenses. The war also encompassed new expenses of sea. Most of the Black sea and extensive regions of the Arctic were declared war zones by Germany. A reference to danger from mines indicated that from the start German sea forces were closely co-ordinated with land and air units.

A few hours after Adolf Hitler, in a spirited appeal, once more placed "the fate and future of the German Reich and our people in the hands of our soldiers," the Reich's axis partner, Italy, announced that she, too, regarded herself in a state of war with Russia. But the Germans obviously were receiving more active support from their new allies.

Germans called Russians the aggressors—morally, spiritually and militarily—pictured them as massing superior numbers of soldiers at the Reich's frontiers, waiting for a moment of German weakness when they hoped to strike.

Reds Accused. Russia was accused of pushing to the west, making the most of the military preoccupation of western Europe to push plans for spreading Communism through the world.

They said Russia sought domination of the Balkans, a protectorate over Bulgaria and demanded of Turkey naval bases on the Dardanelles.

German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop declared Russia had carried on sabotage and espionage with Germany. He said there had been 16 attempts to damage German ships and that even the Russian embassy in Berlin engaged in espionage.

Politically, the war against Russia was a complete about-face by Germany since she signed a non-aggression treaty with the Soviets August 23, 1939, just before Germany went to war with Britain and France over Poland.

Justification for today's action was offered by Hitler, in his proclamation to the German people, and by Von Ribbentrop in a note to the Russian government in which they argued that Russia had violated the nonaggression agreement.

Obligated To Act. Against Russia's "aggressions," including alleged cases of military violation of German borders, Hitler and Von Ribbentrop said the Reich was finally obliged to act.

The German leaders said Germany had viewed with great reluctance Russian movements against the Baltic states, Finland and finally against Rumania. Germany, they said, had yielded point after point in the interests of peace.

In the far north the Finns, smarting from defeat in a well-fought war against Russia, were represented as eager for vengeance and recovery for war-lost territory. Rumania's grudge was just as bitter, as the case is represented here.

Thus, with Russia subject to attack in the north by Finland, in the central sector by the main German forces, and in the south by Rumania—both of the allies having German troop support—it appeared to German strategists that Russia was at many points vulnerable to pincer actions.

The Germans employed these tactics with spectacular success in Poland, the Low Countries and France.

The new phase of the war was proclaimed by the Germans with customary dramatics.

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels read Hitler's statement in early morning over the radio and Von Ribbentrop, who obviously hadn't slept and was extremely nervous, called foreign correspondents at 6 a. m. to the foreign office, where he read his note to Russia.

Hitler's whereabouts were not disclosed, but it was recalled that he never was far from action when the German army gets a new assignment. His troops, assuming that some were on Russian soil, were today in 19 foreign nations, in some as allies and in others as conquerors.

Aside from Russia, they are in Poland, Norway, Belgium, Holland, France, Luxembourg, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Greece, Slovakia, Bohemia, Finland, Croatia, Italy and Egypt.

ANTONESCU ATTACKS AS GERMAN ALLY BUCHAREST, German-occupied Rumania, June 22.—(AP)—General Ion Antonescu sent Rumania's army against Soviet Russia today as a full-fledged ally of Germany, ordering his troops to recapture Rumanian soil and "free your oppressed brothers from the red yoke of Bolshevism."

Advices to London from Axis and Axis-influenced sources said the Rumanians already had smashed across the frontier of Soviet Russia on the southern flank of what Adolf Hitler called a German-Finnish-Rumanian war on the U. S. S. R., from the Arctic to the Black sea.

Reuters, British news agency, said the Rome radio announced that Rumanian forces had crossed the Prut river at 3 a. m. Sunday and said Rumanians had occupied the town of Bolgrad, across the Bessarabia border in Russia.

The Prut divides Rumania and Bessarabia, formerly a Rumanian province across the frontier of Soviet Russia with the acquiescence of Hitler. Bolgrad is about 20 miles east of the Prut and roughly the same distance north of the Danube.

Reuters said one of Antonescu's first steps was to assume power of a generalissimo in Rumania and relinquish his civil role of premier to his nephew, Mihail Antonescu, minister without portfolio in the Bucharest cabinet.

Nazis Get Blow by Blow Story From Announcer Behind Tree

BERLIN, June 22.—(AP)—Front-line news from the new eastern battlefields blared out of German radios today to the accompaniment of the actual sound of machineguns, bombs, artillery and tanks in action.

The German machine swept forward at 3:05 a. m., said an army reporter crouching behind a tree at an East Prussian border village as the sound of guns roared from the radio.

In an excited voice he told how infantry advanced across a street in a small village, unidentified in his account, to a line of tank obstructions, beyond which lay No Man's Land.

"The Russian fire is not enough to hold our infantry," the reporter said as directed. Other "Light machineguns are now going forward. The (Russian) bunker over there still answers. It is not made of concrete, but of logs."

RAF Continues Terrific Drive Against Coast

Reports 30 Nazi Planes Destroyed, Apathetic Resistance.

LONDON, June 22.—(AP)—Giving the German invasion bases in France no letup, RAF destroyed 30 German warplanes over the English Channel and France today at the loss of only two British fighters, it was announced officially. The pilot of one of these is safe.

Revised reports from RAF headquarters said 29 German planes were shot down by fighters and one by a Blenheim bomber after it was damaged by fighters.

(Berlin said the British lost 11 planes).

The air ministry news service said today's score brought the fighter command's daylight bag for the last seven days to 98 German aircraft against a loss of 19 British pilots. It added that of 58 planes downed in the last two days many were of the new ME-109 type.

Most of the fighter command pilots who took part in today's operations spoke on their return of the lack of spirit shown by German pilots, the service said.

Squadrons which acted as escorts to bombers on the way to targets and back saw 50 Messerschmitts as they were returning to the coast. Although they outnumbered the British they attempted no concerted attack, one squadron leader said.

Most of the German aircraft shot down were over enemy territory, the service said.

An air raid alarm sounded in London during the night. It was the first since June 14. No gunfire was heard immediately.

Deadly Parallel Between Hitler, Napoleon Seen

French Conqueror Finally Was Forced to Disastrous Retreat.

By The Associated Press. Russia's foreign commissar, Vyacheslav Molotov, was quick to draw the deadly parallel yesterday of the Napoleonic and Hitler invasions of Russia. Upon closer examination it is even more striking than the mere defeat of Napoleon to which Molotov referred.

Napoleon, in 1807, made a sort of nonaggression pact with Czar Alexander I of Russia, much in the fashion that Hitler in 1939 made one with Joseph Stalin.

Continuing the parallel, Alexander annexed Finland and Bessarabia.

With Britain left as the sole champion of the anti-Napoleonic force of the west and of the east grew more and more to distrust each other. In June, 1812, Napoleon's Grande Armee invaded Russia.

Alexander adopted a studied policy of retreat. In September, Napoleon occupied the ruins of Moscow, which the Russians had burned, and confidently waited five weeks for a Russian peace plea that never came. With winter coming on, Napoleon had to withdraw.

The retreat from Moscow through the snows resulted in the near annihilation of his army.

There followed the "Wars of Liberation," of 1813 and 1814, which took Alexander and his army to the walls of Paris.

Will history repeat? Molotov says it will.

All Officers Placed On Traffic Duty

All Atlanta police officers in the future will be charged with the responsibility of enforcing traffic laws and preventing automobile accidents, it was announced last night by Assistant Chief Neal Ellis.

Heretofore, the enforcement of traffic regulation has been left up to a detailed "traffic squad." Under the new arrangement, however, the captains of all watches will be held accountable for violations and accidents.

At the same time, Mayor LeCraw announced that the Atlanta Automobile Association had prepared 50,000 booklets summarizing the city's traffic codes. These booklets will be distributed at the police station and copies will be given traffic offenders.

ANOTHER NAZI BOMB TARGET—The trackless trolley bus pictured on the main street of Kiev, city of Soviet Russia, looks little different from those which course the Atlanta streets, but the environment in which they operate is vastly different today. Kiev was the target of one of the first raids by German warplanes in the Russo-Nazi war.

ASKS NO WAR, FEELS BOMBS—Here is a street scene in Kaunas, capital of Sovietized Lithuania which was caught in the backwash of the latest German aggression. Kaunas was among the towns bombed yesterday.

martial law in border areas from the Arctic to the Black sea, including the newly Sovietized Baltic states and the Leningrad area.

Russia also put Moscow and its environs under martial law.

It was announced the martial law area ran to Siberia and to the Caucasus.

* The government also declared it had called up Army classes from 1905 to 1918, inclusive.

No Claims.

The German invasion, Molotov asserted, was started without declaration of war and without any claims having been made.

"This unheard-of attack upon our country is perfidiously unparalleled in the history of civilized nations," Molotov cried. "The attack was perpetrated despite the fact that the treaty of nonaggression had been signed between the U. S. S. R. and Germany and that the Soviet government most faithfully abided by all provisions of this treaty."

During the entire life of the German-Russian pact, the foreign commissar told the people, "the German government could not find grounds for a single complaint against the U. S. S. R. as regards observance of this treaty."

Predatory Attack.

"The entire responsibility for this predatory attack upon the Soviet Union," he went on, "falls fully and completely upon the German Fascist rulers."

Not until 5:15 a. m.—after the invasion had been launched—did German Ambassador Count Friedrich Werner von der Schulenberg advise the Kremlin of the German decision to make war as a result of the concentration of Red army units near the German eastern frontier, Molotov said.

"In reply to this," he declared, "stated on behalf of the Soviet government that, until the very last moment, the German government had not presented any claims to the Soviet government, that Germany attacked the U. S. S. R. despite the peaceable position of the Soviet Union, and that for this reason Fascist Germany is the aggressor.

"On instruction of the government of the Soviet Union I also state that at no point had our troops or our air force committed a violation of the frontier and therefore the statement made this morning by the Rumanian radio to the effect that Soviet aircraft allegedly had fired on Rumanian airdromes is a sheer lie and provocation."

Whole Declaration.

"Likewise a lie and provocation is the whole declaration made today by Hitler, who is trying belatedly to concoct accusations charging the Soviet Union with failure to observe the Soviet-German pact."

"Now that the attack on the Soviet Union has already been committed, the Soviet government has ordered our troops to repulse this predatory assault and to drive German troops from the territory of our country."

Molotov said the war was forced on Russia "not by German workers and peasants and intellectuals, whose sufferings we well understand, but by the clique of blood-thirsty Fascist rulers of Germany who have enslaved Frenchmen, Czechs, Poles, Serbians, Norwegians, Belgians, Danes, Holland, Greece and other nations."

Valiant Army.

"The government of the Soviet Union," he asserted, "expresses its unshakable confidence that our valiant army and navy and brave flocks of the Soviet Air Force will acquit themselves with honor in performing their duty to the fatherland, to the Soviet people, and will inflict a crushing blow upon the aggressor.

"This is not the first time that our people have had to deal with an attack of an arrogant foe. At the time of Napoleon's invasion of Russia our people's reply was to war for the fatherland and Napoleon suffered defeat and met his doom."

"It will be the same with Hitler, who in his arrogance has proclaimed a new crusade against our country, the Red army and our whole people will again wage victorious war for the fatherland, for our country, for honor, for liberty."

Molotov closed with an appeal to the people to "rally more closely around our glorious Bolshevik party, around our Soviet government, around our great leader and comrade, Stalin. Ours is a righteous cause. The enemy shall be defeated. Victory will be ours."

Real Romance Develops Between Stirling Hayden And Madeleine Carroll

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, June 22.—Madeleine Carroll and Stirling Hayden look as though they are in love. When Madeleine made "Virginia" with Mr. Hayden, it was suggested that she might have a publicity romance with the handsome blond giant. But she indignantly refused. So did he. At that time, Madeleine was the betrothed of Lieutenant Roziere, now ferrying planes to England. Stirling's mother is occupying Miss Carroll's beach house, and reports from the Bahamas, where the couple are co-starring in "Bahama Passage," indicate a torrid state of affairs.

Betty Grable is in wrong with sections of the local press. The day before Betty went to the hospital to have four teeth removed had been set aside for interviews with the press. At the last minute Miss Grable decided to go to the races with George Raft. So she pretended she had advanced her hospitalization by one day and cancelled the interviews. She went to her dressing room to rest for half an hour before meeting George, fell asleep, and didn't awaken until 5 in the afternoon. So she missed out on the races as well. But that didn't make the reporters feel any better.

Veronica Lake has started something with that hairdresser of hers. Every other girl in Hollywood is dressing her locks over one eye a la Veronica. Has it started in your town? ... Bette Davis has recovered her sense of humor and is back to her pre-tantrum, gracious self. The other day on the set she was telling some visitors, "don't be embarrassed," referring to her own tight, over-revealing dress! ... Maria Montez had a date with Orson Welles (Dolores must have been out of town). Afterward, someone asked Miss Montez, "What did you talk about?"
"Oh, him, of course," she replied.

Charles Boyer will do slapstick comedy in his next film, "Appointment For Love." In one scene he enters Margaret Sullivan's living room carrying an ax and wearing a fireman's helmet! I'm not sure yet what he does with them. But it's hard to visualize the dignified Monsieur Boyd in that sort of situation. ... Lana Turner and Tony Martin at the Judy Garland-engagement party, almost stole the show. So many people asked them, "And when are you getting married?" that they finally left in a huff. ... Marlene Dietrich will be seen on

Mrs. Elaine Barrymore—remember her?—is hoping to write articles for national magazines. She has promised one publication an exclusive interview with a certain Mr. Barrymore, but the latter refuses to see the lady. Mickey Rooney is too short to be a soldier, so Metro does not have to worry about draft complications for the No. 1 box-office champ. ... Talking about Metro, readers are writing to me, demanding a reprieve from death for Laraine Day in the latest "Kildare" picture. Most of the writers state that Miss Day is the chief reason for the popularity of the Kildares, and to kill her off means the death of the series.

Family Outings Can Help Stepmother

Dear Dixie:

I have a nice home and a fine husband, who has a good job. Everything could be very pleasant, but I have two stepdaughters, aged 16 and 18. They date every night and are just minding anything their dad or anyone else says. They are forever being sassy to me, and they make up things about me and tell their father things which are not true. He resents it, of course. We have been married three years, and they have done everything they could to keep us in trouble. My husband is 55 and I am 45; it's a second marriage for both of us. We love each other dearly. I do all our work, the girls will not even clean up their own rooms. I have done all I can to be good to the girls, but I believe they resent me because I have taken their mother's place. My children are all married. This situation has made me sick from worry.

The situation is one which should be handled with as much diplomacy as possible. I can understand your situation perfectly, and that of the girls as well. For I agree with you that they resent you because you have taken their mother's place. I think the only thing you can do is to try to be as friendly with them as possible. Talk with your husband about them and tell him the situation and perhaps he will be able to exert a bit of influence on them. Have you tried to form foursomes, including you and your husband and the girls, for some pleasurable activity? Have you tried trying to be pals with them, rather than an outsider? I think you will have to try to be more friendly with them. Try to make them realize that you have their interests at heart. The girls are at an age now when they think they do not need the influence of a home and an older woman, but they are wrong. It is very important and you should try to make them see that. They should not try to arrange some parties at home for them? Tell them to ask their friends over and you enter into the spirit of the occasion and try to make your home a meeting place for their friends. I think you will notice a change in them if you do this, because they will feel and have more of a comradeship with you. It sounds like a big order, along with all the housework you have to do, but happiness in the home is worth working for. I think your husband will co-operate, too. As for their rooms, tell them it is their duty to clean up, and if they refuse, let the rooms go for a few days. I think they will come around. All girls want an attractive looking room.

Paying Board Will Prove Wise.

Dear Dixie:
My marriage was a mistake and while I was getting my divorce I lived with my sister and her husband. I worked to take care of myself, but did not pay board as my stay with my sister was more like a visit than "room and board." I just happened to get the job, and it served to pass the time away as well as providing me with a little money. Since I have gotten my divorce, I have continued to live with my sister and her family, and although I do not get any money from my ex-husband I feel that I should pay something to the upkeep of the home. What do you think? My sister thinks it is unwise and says that she thinks I am being very foolish to suggest such a thing. Please give me some advice.

GAY DIVORCEE.
I think you are very sensible to consider paying something toward the housekeeping expenses and my advice to you is to pay a certain amount each week for your board and room. It may sound harsh to consider commercializing your relationship, and it may seem foolish now, but in the future it will be good judgment. By paying something you can feel free to do as you please. Your sister and her husband may say that they do not want you to consider paying, but if you do not, it will lead to some unpleasantness. As a permanent guest, you cannot expect so much consideration, but if you are paying, you can have a much more secure feeling. One big happy family is not always the case, you know, and I think the money question is bound to arise sooner or later. So be prepared.

Tiny Waistline and Curves Characterize Figure Trend

By Ida Jean Kain.

When the movie powers encourage the girls to add curves, that's news. It may be the boys in camp are responsible for the upcurve. They have given their vote of enthusiastic approval to Sheridan, Turner and Lane. At the same time, the figure that is setting tomorrow's fashion today is normal weight with a tiny waistline and curves.

The girls who meet the screen's specifications are not only beautiful, but they exude health. Plenty of vitality seems to go with such perfect figure distribution, and on their light-footed way to the top of the ladder they are running circles around the actresses who keep themselves as thin as a blade of grass.

In a recent contest to discover who, currently, has the best figure in Hollywood, the nominees read like a list of successful heroines. They are either "the most likely to succeed" or, having arrived, they are sure to hold their own. Betty Grable came in first, but running her a close race were Ann Sheridan, Paulette

Gale Page, Warner Brothers actress, is a good example of the fact that casual beauty requires good grooming. You'll find your beauty care simplified greatly if you have one of the kits mentioned below. Your vacation or summer trip will not find you lacking in necessities.

Personalized Beauty Kit Saves Money

By Winifred Ware.

Your vacation won't be a bit of fun if you have to worry about replenishing your cosmetics while you're away. Nor will your packing be very simple if you must fit in large-sized bottles and jars, probably ones that are half full yet take up a lot of space.

The simple and wise thing to do is to buy a kit which contains exactly the preparations you will need, packed together as compactly as possible. There are so many wonderful cosmetic kits on the market that you will be able to find one to fit both your needs and your pocketbook!

To help you I want to tell you about two which I've noticed as being most practical and very good buys. One is a treatment kit which is within anyone's reach, for it costs just $1.50. ... and listen to what it holds. There's a generous jar of cleansing cream, a jar of night cream to lubricate around the eyes and the neck, and a jar of face cream for a powder foundation. There's also a bottle of skin lotion to remove the last traces of cleansing cream before you apply your make-up. Finally, there's a jar containing a pick-up mask to use before special occasions.

The other kit is a personalized kit which includes everything from treatments to make-up and is the best buy for the money that I know. The complete kit costs but $5 and contains from $6.60 to $7.35 worth of preparations, depending on your skin type. The kit is personalized in two ways. First, in make-up it includes the rouge (cream or cake), lipstick of your selection, and a face powder especially blended right before you to suit your coloring. Second the creams included in the kit are the ones to suit your skin type, for there is a selection for oily skins and one for dry skins. Oily skins will get an oily skin cleansing cream, a normalizing cream for use on every other night and a special pore cream to use on alternate nights. Of course, there's a skin lotion.

Dry skins will get a dry skin cleansing cream, a texture cream for night use, and a delightfully light powder base, along with a skin lotion.

The jars in these kits are all standard size, and that's why I could figure up what a bargain it is. You really save from $1.60 to $2.35 in buying the kit. ... and save yourself some trouble, too. You'll have your complete beauty routine from make-up to treatment packed together in one substantial box which will go with you anywhere. I'll be glad to tell you more about these kits if you call me at Walnut 6565 or write me in care of The Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MY DAY: A Brief Pause For Relaxation

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

CAMPOBELLO ISLAND N. B., FRIDAY.—I woke up early yesterday morning. Perhaps it was the feel of the invigorating New England air which gave me so much energy. I used to spend a month or two quietly settled on Campobello Island for many summers, when our children were small and it is always pleasant to return there.

Yesterday morning I had a little chat with the landlady of the cabins we stopped at outside of Portsmouth, who told me that one of her sons would be eligible for the draft this year. He is working in a defense industry and may not be called, so he is thinking of volunteering. Her other son is still in school. It was interesting to find she agreed with me that, if we want a peaceful world in the future, we will have to do more than just talk about it and attend to our own affairs.

I drove into Portsmouth and had my car serviced and sent some telegrams. By the time I returned the others had about made up their minds, I think, that I had run away and deserted them. We started at once in search of breakfast and stopped at the first place we could find. Then we drove steadily all day except for a pleasant picnic lunch in a park which the CCC boys are arranging as a picnic area. They have built a number of buildings and are clearing the paths and parking spaces. It overlooks the water across the rocky beach and is really very beautiful. I think it will be very popular. Some other people already found their way there today, even though it is evident that it was newly opened.

We bought a newspaper in Portland and were startled by the news that Germany has made some definite demands on Russia, which would seem to make it difficult for Russia to remain on a friendly footing with her former ally. At intervals during the rest of the day we tried to get more definite news over the radio concerning this situation. All that we could get, however, was that in Moscow rumors are flying about. That state of affairs is nothing new in any European country.

There is a bank of fog not very far out at sea but the sun was kind enough to stay out and to give us a very gorgeous sunset on our arrival. The man on the ferry told us they had been having more or less foggy weather, so he thought we might be favored with some good days.

It is very nice to see so many pleasant, familiar faces. The custom officials in both Lubec, Maine, and Campobello Island, N. B., treated us kindly. In no time we seemed to be settled in the house. Much must be done before the house will be ready for the many young people who are to be here for five weeks, but I think, somehow, we shall accomplish it.

diets, and that they get outdoor exercise for sun and air, and when needed specific exercises. Specific calisthenics apt to be overlooked by the average woman—bent only on slimming waist and hips—are those which improve the contour of bust, arms and shoulders. It takes time and persistence to make an improvement in this portion of the figure, but with the exercises in the new "Bust-Normalizing Leaflet" you girls who complain of a lack of curves should be able to notice a difference in six to eight weeks. # FOLLOWING WAR---WHAT?

Underconsumption and Not Overproduction Is Problem for U. S.

(This is the fourth of a series of articles on what official Washington thinks ought to be done to reform our economic system in order to meet the crisis that is bound to come after the war.)

By BLAIR MOODY.

For North American Newspaper Alliance.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Behind all the battles in and near the White House among those fighting to dictate the course of American economic future lies one pervasive question:

If industry and agriculture expand, will they find a market for what they produce?

On the answer everything depends. If it is no, then those who seek to end the paradox of want and unemployment in a land of unlimited and untested power to produce, might as well fold up their tents and go home. And the American people might as well steel themselves for another and more violent round of boom-bust cycles, with the next bust likely to be the last.

Hope Looms.

If it's yes, then a broad new horizon of hope opens, not alone for those who have yet to receive their first full fruits of what a properly managed American can do, but for those who stand to lose most if our system as it exists fails to survive.

As might be expected, the neanderthal rearward battlers against the new economic facts of life are lugubrious apostles of gloom. If we keep on following their own orthodox rules of the game, they predict a terrible collapse when Uncle Sam gets through arming.

But they see no other way out. For isn't it fantastic, they inquire, to suggest that the solution lies in glutting the markets with goods that can't be sold? Hasn't the country suffered enough from the evils of overproduction? Won't the situation be bad enough after the inevitable crash without having a lot of extra idle plants and a too-productive acreage as a millstone around our collective neck?

Progressive Realist.

Millstones? At this point we turn the floor over to Milo Perkins, a Texas businessman who came to Washington four years ago to tell the New Deal what was wrong with it, and was told to get in and help run it. He invented the food-stamp plan, which has lifted millions of American families above the starvation-diet line while helping both farmers and merchants. He is now surplus marketing administrator. On broad issues, he is one of the most progressive of Mr. Roosevelt's economic realists.

Perkins concedes that unless there are sweeping changes in our basic approach to national economics, new so-called market gluts of either farm or industrial products, would merely make a bad situation worse.

But he declares that these changes must come and the sooner everyone realizes it the better. He urges that strong measures must be taken, while the golden flow of defense billions is pouring into industry and agriculture, to correct the evils that have caused the boom-bust whirligigs of the past.

His formula: Make the system of competition and profits which has built America work for all its people; modernize it before it destroys itself.

No market for "surplus" goods? "The unsatisfied wants of two-thirds of our people make up the greatest new market that has ever loomed before our businessmen and our farmers," Perkins says.

Need Pioneering.

"It's right in our own backyard. All we need is some courageous internal pioneering and some imagination."

"What we need most is a re-direction of our genius as a people. Heretofore we have concentrated on methods of efficient production. For the first time in history we're suffering because we've got too much of the things we need most. Henceforth, we must concentrate on efficient and businesslike methods of increasing domestic consumption, no matter how much violence it may do to some of our preconceived notions."

"We know how to produce almost anything, but we haven't learned how to distribute such things to the jobless who ask only the chance to work for them."

"This nightmare of underconsumption is the black plague of the twentieth century; we've got to make up our minds to wipe it out with a vengeance. Only one thing can stop us and that's a mental sitdown strike—a kind of smug, nineteenth-century faith that things will work themselves out if only we don't do anything about it."

"We mustn't let that happen. It won't, if we keep our eyes glued to the goal of fully utilizing our resources. We can have full employment in this country in peace times as well as when we are threatened with war—by producing goods for American consumers as well as for defense."

"If we slash out at underconsumption within our own country as we would at a foreign enemy, individual initiative and free enterprise will come into our own as they never have before, and that's the only way we can be sure of their continuance."

Underconsumption.

Is there underconsumption in America? Take the basic budget-item of every family, food. There are 45,000,000 Americans, Perkins says, living below the diet danger line.

An official survey shows that 20,000,000 people live on an average of 10 cents a meal, or 15 cents a day, as compared with 43 cents a day spent by Uncle Sam for the standard army ration and 46 cents for the navy.

Some 25,000,000 more exist on 7 and 8 cents a meal. The American people, Perkins says, are asked whether folks had enough to eat. The "voters" for 50,000,000 Americans said "no."

Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, declares that on Texas county reports: "20 per cent of the deaths in this county in 1938 were hastened by lack of sufficient food and balanced diets." And another county: "Malnutrition has been a contributing cause in approximately 60 per cent of the deaths in this county for the past five years."

"Texas certainly isn't alone," McNutt says. "It simply happens to have faced its facts a little squarer."

"If everyone ate as much as the average member of a $100-a-month family, it would increase the amount spent for food by nearly $2,000,000,000," Perkins says. "An area as large as Iowa would be required to produce the food for the added market."

Does the fact so many get so little to eat affect the national welfare?

Army sources reveal that, despite health standards reduced under the last war, 32 per cent of all selectees are rejected by their local boards for health reasons and of the 68 per cent who go to induction centers another 12 per cent are turned down as physically unfit—40 per cent of the total.

Food for Health.

Due chiefly to inadequate nutrition? Britain took 1,000 young men turned down in her draft, put them in a camp for six months with good food, and sent them back for examination mixed in with others so they could not be distinguished. More than 80 per cent passed.

Hazel K. Stiebeling, the government's No. 1 nutrition expert, estimates that on a minimum basis to protect health the country should consume 10 to 20 per cent more milk, 15 per cent more butter, 70 per cent more tomatoes and citrus fruit, 100 per cent more green and yellow vegetables and 35 per cent more eggs.

"The term 'surplus,' as applied to these foods," Perkins says, "is simply a smug, polite term for a shocking amount of underconsumption." The same conclusion was voiced by the national nutrition conference, which met here at the President's call late last month.

The need for more food is a fair sample of the untapped market that is waiting not only for agriculture but for industry if our national leadership has the imagination to grasp it. For does anyone imagine the families—under $1,000 are much better equipped with clothing or bedding (millions in the cotton belt have never slept on a mattress) with ice boxes or automobiles, or with thousands of other items that should comprise an American family's standard of living?

That great potential pool of purchasing power, of course, can't spring into being overnight. It must be created by American enterprise, American vision, American initiative and willingness to expand production, creating peace-time jobs for people whose wages will buy what they have made, and whose income, in the aggregate, will absorb "surpluses," pay taxes and end our national economic ills.

Hitler's Lesson.

There is one man who has understood well how to use the power of a nation to produce—adolf Hitler. He got a seven-year jump on his rivals, fully devoted Germany's energy toward war instead of peace, and now mocks at the "stupid arguments which show up the dry-rot of democracies."

By comparison—unemployment in the United States during the '30's wasted 100,000,000 man-years of labor!

Hitler's ruthless singleness of purpose gave him one great advantage. No one dared dispute him. And his "genius" can be boiled down to one axiom of common sense: He knows that the one thing he cannot afford to do is fail to produce.

Is the world's greatest democracy going to prove his diagnosis of dry-rot right by uniting to produce in the face of danger, only to stagger into collapse and catastrophe after the crisis has passed?

Starfish in Rhode Island waters had better twinkle off to neutral Long Island Sound.

Because starfish prey on oysters and clams, a $1,000 state appropriation for their removal has unleashed a fleet of dredging tugs seeking the $15-per-ton bounty on the asteroid family.

The richest edible shellfish areas in Narragansett Bay have been marked out for dredging and the opening day 10 boats scooped up 15 tons of starfish, burying the weighing and paying station with their haul. The fish will be turned over to farmers for fertilizer.

Dramatization Of Harris' Life Tonight at 9:30

Karl Swenson Will Tell Story of Beloved 'Uncle Remus.'

By PAUL JONES.

The story of how Joel Chandler Harris gathered Negro folklore for his "Br'er Rabbit and the Tarbaby" and many other of his famous "Uncle Remus" stories will be told tonight when the life of one of Georgia's most loved citizens and one of America's best known authors is dramatized on the "Cavalcade of America" program tonight from 9:30 to 10 o'clock over WSB.

Karl Swenson, noted teller of tales, will turn the pages in the life history of the man who was recognized for his editorials in The Constitution. Joel Chandler Harris, who started as a printer, rose to become editor of The Constitution, with which he was associated for over a quarter century.

Mr. Harris' stories of the Negro race in Georgia have placed him among the greatest humorists and authors in America. Many of his most famous stories were written in his office at The Constitution.

EUCARIST CONGRESS ON AIR TONIGHT

The colorful ceremonies at the Ninth National Eucharist Congress will be broadcast over WATL tonight from 10 to 10:30 o'clock and over WAGA from 10:30 to 11 o'clock. This will mark the opening broadcasts in a series to be heard over these two stations. Others will be announced later.

Provided the necessary arrangements can be made, a program will be presented Thursday which will bring to the radio audience the voice of Pope Pius XII.

The service tonight will feature the ceremonies connected with the reception for the Pope, his Eminence, Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia. The program will originate from the Municipal Auditorium in Minneapolis, Minn.

James Roosevelt Sees 'Tremendous Job' Ahead

NEW YORK, June 22.—Returning from a 'round-the-world' trip as a United States military observer, Captain James Roosevelt expressed belief tonight the democracies fighting Nazism faced a "tremendous job."

The President's eldest son carried a bulging khaki knapsack which he said contained information which he would report to his superiors, Major General Thomas Holcomb of the Marine Corps and Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, tomorrow in Washington.

Asked whether he was "disheartened," Captain Roosevelt replied:

"No. It is one of those things and situations in which I can say I am neither heartened nor disheartened."

He added that Great Britain needed planes, tanks and everything this country could send.

Work To Start On 'Stumpage' Camp in Echols

Hercules Construction Work Near Valdosta Begins Today.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. VALDOSTA, Ga., June 22.—The Hercules Powder Company has completed plans for one of its largest "stumpage" camps to be located a quarter of a mile north of Statenville, in Echols county, on the new state highway No. 11, at a cost of from $60,000 to $75,000.

The initial construction calls for 12 dwellings for white families and 28 dwellings for colored families, a large commissary and a deep water well.

Following the construction of the dwellings, garages, barns and shops will be built. All construction will be of a substantial type, with complete sanitary arrangements.

The camp site has a frontage of 2,000 feet on highway No. 11, and is within about 20 miles of Valdosta, which is the business and trading center for Echols and adjoining counties.

An engineering crew tomorrow will begin locating light and power lines to serve dwelling and community streets.

Plans for this enterprise, which is in line with national defense, were completed following conferences held in Valdosta Friday at Hotel Daniel Ashley.

From authentic sources it is learned that the stumpage in the section of the new camp agree-

Gallup Poll Reveals:

Workers Favor 'Business' Rule

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion. Copyright, 1941.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 22.—One of the questions raised by some commentators in the aftermath of the North American Aviation Company strike at Inglewood, Cal.—in which the government sent in troops to take over the plant—is whether labor groups will regard this as an invitation to launch more strikes with the sole purpose of forcing the government to take over more industrial plants.

In view of such speculations, it is worth asking: How many Americans actually employed in private business and industry would welcome the substitution of government operation for present business management?

How many American workers, in other words, would like to see the government step in?

The answers—from a nationwide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion—will bring comfort to those who may have thought that any large number of Americans in the employed classes have come to regard business operation as a desirable end.

"Do you think you would be better off if the concern you work for were taken over and operated by the federal government," the Institute asked a cross-section of the more than 30,000,000 workers in United States business and industry, "or would you prefer to leave it under the present business management?"

Only one employee in 14 on the average (7%) said he would favor government operation of the company he worked for.

The remainder were overwhelmingly in favor of retaining business management and control.

The actual vote:

Prefer Government Operation 7%
Management 81%
No Choice or No Opinion 12%

This does not mean that under certain circumstances—in the North American strike itself, for instance—the public might not favor temporary government operation in the interests of national defense production. But the survey shows remarkably little sentiment for government operation as a permanent policy.

gates between 400,000 and a half-million acres.

The company removes the stumps and processes them for synthetic turpentine and other by-products and the residue is used in the manufacture of gun powder. The new plant will add largely to the capacity of the Hercules Company to meet demands made upon it for explosives to be used in national defense.

Droning Planes Violate Quiet of Tobacco Road

Army Training Base Situated Near Storied Locale.

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 22.—(AP)—Things aren't quiet any more along the river end of Georgia's Tobacco Road.

The hum of mosquito hawks and dirt daubers and the snore of Jeeter Lester and all the other fictional characters that inhabit the drowsy place have been startled into utter silence.

For the Army, with all its loud machines of war, has come to Tobacco Road and drowned out the simple noises that brought it unwanted fame.

The road, on which hogheads of tobacco were rolled down to barges on the Savannah river many years ago, today runs squarely through the airfield of Georgia Aero Tech, where Army Air Corps pilots are receiving their basic training.

In two months, a modern air base has mushroomed up in the quiet sector. Here, in a few weeks, young British airmen are scheduled to begin their basic training alongside American lads.

At the foot of the road, a few hundred yards from the river, is an ancient cemetery, where some of the earliest settlers of this section rest. It added to the general atmosphere of quietude until the Army came.

The exact locale of "Tobacco Road," the story by Erskine Caldwell, which, when produced as a play, ran for a record period on Broadway, is a few miles to the south and west of the actual trail, which winds in sandy ruts down to the river.

The people who live along the Tobacco Road never got very excited about it. Some of them journeyed to Augusta to see the play or the movie and most of them thought it was "overdrawn." But they never raised any loud protests. Most of these came from citizens living in Augusta itself, about 10 miles from the road.

More than a score of training planes are based at Georgia Aero Tech. Within three weeks, 100 will be stationed there, and the complement of cadets in training will be increased to 400.

An average of 12.82 cents, and less than the 1938 average of 18.45 cents.

A few barns in south Georgia, eastern Alabama and northern Florida already have been fired for curing the bright leaf crop, but most growers said the "coking" would not reach full swing for another week or 10 days. Some of the smaller growers complained that replanting of sun-withered stands would force them to fire their barns when only partially filled, and continue the day-and-night curing process much longer than originally intended.

The bright leaf crop is under Triple-A marketing quota, set by the federal government under a three-year plan approved by referendum last July.

Widespread Replantings Indicate Long Curing Season.

MOULTREE, Ga., June 22.—(AP) Sued from serious drought damage by recent heavy showers, the tobacco crop is expected to be harvested nearly on schedule in most areas, although widespread replantings indicated that the curing would be extended over a longer period than usual.

Dates for opening of tobacco markets throughout the belt are to be announced next Friday by the United States Tobacco Association. Georgia markets usually open the first week in August, but lateness of the crop brought suggestions from some warehouses that auctions should begin not sooner than the middle of August.

If the crop equals that of last year, Georgia growers would receive approximately $12,433,000 on the basis of 1940 prices. The average price last year was 15.63 cents a pound for 79,547,000 pounds. This was an advance over 1939, when growers abandoned government quotas and the 101,336,000-pound crop brought an

Farm Experts From 7 States Tour Georgia

Survey Opens in Dade County Tomorrow Morning.

During the afternoon they will visit the peach area near Fort Valley and proceed as far south as Perry. The third day will be devoted to a conference session in Athens and a visit to the little Tennessee river valley in Rabun county, while the last day will be spent in Towns and Union counties.

E. D. Alexander, extension agronomist, is chairman of the committee arranging the tour. The group will be welcomed to Georgia by L. I.
